CLARKS SUMMIT (Lackawanna Co.) — As Thanksgiving time approaches and another turkey will grace countless holiday dinner tables, the Pallman family works double-time to make sure that they can meet thousands of requests for dinner.

This 139-acre farm sits just minutes outside of Scranton, surrounded by townhouses. However, Pallman Farms continues the family's 50-year tradition of HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — During the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau's (PFB) Annual Convention Tuesday evening at the Hershey Lodge and Convention Center, former Agriculture Secretary Sam Hayes was selected as the 2003 Distinguished Service to Agriculture Award winner.

PFB president Guy Donaldson called the Distinguished Service Award the "Who's Who of Agriculture." He congratulated Hayes for being "added to the list," recognizing Hayes for his years of service to agriculture.

"Sam has served his country for more than 30 years, first in the U.S. Army as a veteran of the Vietnam War where he received the Bronze Star, in the Pennsylvania House of Representatives as a lawmaker and legislative leader for 22 years, and most recently as Pennsylvania's secretary of agriculture. With each responsibility, he has always approached it with a 'call to duty,'" said Donaldson.

Hayes was nominated by three counties for this year's award. Donaldson noted several highlights of Hayes' career, which included serving in the House of Representatives as the majority leader and whip and as secretary of agriculture in the Ridge and Schweiker administrations.

Wolff Opposes USDA Butter Release

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania Agriculture Secretary Dennis Wolff criticized the USDA's recent decision to sell 3 million pounds of butter on the open market, arguing that the sale will depress dairy prices and hurt Pennsylvania dairy farmers.

"I am deeply disappointed in the USDA's decision to sell the butter from Commodity Credit Corporation stocks on the commercial market," said Wolff. "Milk prices are just beginning to show improvement. Now the USDA's decision to release these stocks of butter will likely have an adverse impact on prices received by dairy farmers."

USDA decided to sell the but-

Compared to Thursday, slaughter steers sold 3.00-5 00 lower at both the Monday and Tuesday sale Both runs consisted of mostly average Choice and high Select cattle, with a good portion of the Tuesday sale weighing up pretty full The cattle complex is quiet through Tuesday. The Mercantile Exchange posted limit-up gains on Tuesday in the live cattle pits, although it wasn't able to spark any sort of western trade. Boxed beef cutout values were reported higher Tuesday morning, with Choice carcasses from 167 00-169.00. It's the time of year when Turkey specials takes up a good portion of your grocers meat counter, and it would be safe to say that most stores are having a hard time convincing shoppers to pick a high priced red meat item in place of the traditional turkey.

The slaughter heifer and Holstein markets were not tested. Slaughter cows sold weak to 2.00 lower, although demand remains good especially for Premium White cows, as many packers are shying away from the continued high price of slaughter steers. The combined two-day run included 312 head of slaughter steers, 87 head of slaughter heifers, 422 head of slaughter cows, 17 head of slaughter bulls, and 289 head of feeder cattle.

Compared to last Thursday, slaughter steers sold 1.50-2.50 lower, with heavy Choice steers as much as 3.00 lower at times The quality of the run was average, and included primarily Choice cattle that continue to bring from mostly 103 00-105.00 The high Choice and Prime cattle are still heavily sought after by kosher buyers, with prices from mostly 110.00-112.00, the only problem is there is currently not near the supply of high quality cattle that the area is known for Prices remain outstanding for finished steers, especially considering what levels producers were selling cattle for this time last year. Receipts remain light as well, as around 300 head of steers were checked in on Thursday. That 300 head includes Holsteins, black and mixed pen cattle. So in reality, there were around 175 head that would grade Select or better. It came as somewhat of a surprise that bids were not lower than they were at the Thursday sale, after most major mid-western markets moved steers lower mid-week. The direct feedyards in Nebraska sold show lists from 98.00-99.00 live on Thursday, which is 1.00-2.00 lower. The CME has not been overly bullish or bearish, with the current spot November live cattle contract closing at 99.42 on Thursday (which is perfectly aligned with the cash trade), and December closing at 94.50. In fact, live futures prices taper off slowly clear to August of 2004, which closed at 73.57. Take that for what it's worth. Slaughter Holstein and heifer numbers remain light and a trend was not established. Slaughter cows sold 1.00-2 00 higher, with Boning cows as much as 3.00 higher. Demand continues to be high for Premium White cows as packers are willing to pay up to 65.00 for them to keep their chains full, as most are still shying away from procuring too many of these high prices steers. Slaughter bulls sold with a higher undertone, although the run was lighter than last weeks; and higher cow prices, as can be expected, have added some fire onto the bull market. The supply included 316 head of slaughter steers, 47 head of slaughter heifers, 550 head of slaughter cows, 69 head of slaughter bulls, with 269 head of feeder cattle.

Note: The New Holland Sales Stables will be closed on Thursday November the 27th in observance of the Thanksgiving holiday. However, there will be a sale held on Friday the 28th at the regular time.

Slaughter Steers: High Choice and Prime 2-4 1230-1480 lbs 107.50-114.00, mostly 110.00-112.00, fancier 113.00-118.50, few heavy 1505-1545 lbs 104.00- 108.00. East Fluid Milk And Cream Review

Madison, Wis.
November 19, 2003
Report Supplied by USDA

SPOT PRICES OF CLASS II CREAM, dollars per lb butterfat: F.O.B producing plants: Northeast: 1.6756-1.8820. Delivered Equivalent. Atlanta: 1.7242-1.8942 mostly 1.7606-1.8577.

PRICES OF CONDENSED SKIM, dollars per lb. wet solids, F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast: Class II, includes monthly formula prices: .8700-.9300. Class III, spot prices: 1.2000-1.3000.

SPOTS SHIPMENTS OF GRADE A MILK: FLORIDA: This Week. In 159; Out 0; Last Week: In 136, Out 0; Last Year: In 132, Out 0. SOUTHEAST STATES: This Week: In 00, Out 0; Last Week: In 0, Out 0; Last Year. In 0, Out 0

EDITOR'S NOTE. Due to changes in milk supply agreements, milk import/export totals are not directly comparable to year ago figures and to shipments prior to April 1, 2003.

Regional Milk Market Administrators announced the following, October 2003 uniform prices: Northeast $15.21, Mideast $14 25, Southeast $16.07, Florida $17.67, and Western New York (a state order) $14.78 at the base city or county in the orders (For the Northeast, Mideast, and Western New York orders, statistical uniform prices are reported.) During October, milk production in the 20 major states totaled 12 0 billion pounds, down 0.2% from October 2002. The following are the October-to-October changes for selected states Texas 7 6%, Vermont -2 3%, New York -3 6%, Florida -7 4%, Pennsylvania -7 5%, Kentucky -8 1% and Virginia -10 0%

Milk production is mostly steady in most of the Northeast, steady to higher in the Southeast Heavy rains are covering much of the region and some flooding is causing scattered transportation problems. Fluid milk supplies are very tight in the East. Contacts report even tighter supplies this week as bottlers increase production runs to fill next week's anticipated needs If history shows us anything, these same bottlers will be canceling loads early next week since schools will be closed. However, many bottlers will move their "down day" to the holiday and then start refilling pipelines on Friday. Florida's need for milk increased this week as bottlers increased orders and more "winter residents" are arriving. The current, improved demand for Class I milk is pulling more milk from Class III & IV plants where the tight milk supply is really being felt. Many operations have cut back on their already reduced operating schedules. Contacts are coping as best they can and milk is moving greater distances.

The condensed skim market tone is little changed and prices are steady. Supplies are tight and few spot sales are reported.

The fluid cream market is very firm. Contacts continue to report a shortage of cream all across the country. Plants in regions that typically supply cream to all regions are now looking to buy cream. Spot prices are jumping as both last week's CME average butter price and multiples have increased sharply in the past week and a half (This past Monday's close on AA butter at the CME surprised many cream contacts when it dipped three cents.) Demand for cream is seasonally very good and some accounts are not getting all they desire. Production of bottled cream, egg nog, sour cream, dip, and cream cheese are quite heavy Ice cream output is also holding above anticipated levels. Churning activity is limited.

We Gather Together

The first Thanksgiving at Plymouth was a three-day feast in heartfelt gratitude for survival, but most of the Thanksgivings in our country's early history were to celebrate victories in battle. The Continental Congress proclaimed the first national day of Thanksgiving on December 18, 1777, to celebrate the defeat of the British at Saratoga. These national observances were patriotic occasions, quite separate from the local harvest festivals. The first nationwide Thanksgiving Day to combine patriotism, harvesttime, and religious observances was in 1863. In 1941, Thanksgiving Day was permanently fixed as the fourth Thursday in November.

OPINION

Decision Sets Dangerous Precedent

The Lancaster Chamber of Commerce and Industry's Agriculture Committee recently launched a letter-writing campaign voicing its grave concern regarding the recent denial decision made by USDA's Farm Service Agency with reference to Farm Ownership and Farm Operating Assistance funding for a Delta-based farm.

The Chamber is concerned the decision sets a dangerous precedent for farms and agribusinesses that would compromise their ability to operate in the region.

The farm, owned and operated by Craig Metzler, was denied funding after initial approval for a proposed hog expansion following a fairly public outcry from residents in an adjacent housing development that such an operation would create odors and property value would decline. Located in an area that permits agricultural uses, the farm met all applicable regulations that are associated with intensive animal operations.

However, in the rejection letter sent to Metzler on Aug. 25, the agency appears to base its change of the original decision on the possibility of nuisance lawsuits from the neighboring residents and the agency's possible liability in such a suit, stating "With the close proximity of the proposed action site to neighboring homes, the potential for complaints and nuisance lawsuits about odor are very likely."

While the decision was directed at one particular farmer, The Chamber believes it sets a very bad precedent by the Farm Service Agency for every farmer and anyone involved in the agriculture industry in the nation. In its template letter, distributed to all agriculture-related Chamber members, The Chamber cited the danger of such a change in decision to the entire industry and the lack of leadership demonstrated by the USDA in allowing such a decision to take place.

The chamber will continue to monitor this situation, and lend its support where appropriate to ensure farms and agriculture-related businesses can operate in an environment where they can thrive.

Now Is The Time

To Give Thanks

Thanksgiving is a very special time of the year when we gather with family and friends to give thanks for the many blessings we enjoy. While some may have had more difficulties than others this past year, we all have things for which we can be thankful.

When I was a teen-ager, the adviser to our church's youth group reminded us several times that no matter how difficult we think our situation is, we can always find people who have a more difficult situation than we do. Since I spent six years working on a mission project in Africa, it is easy for me to remember that truth.

The Thanksgiving holiday is a special opportunity to teach our children to be grateful for all they have and to remember those who are needy. Donating our time and resources to others by assisting with the work of an inner-city rescue mission, for example, is a great way to show gratitude. We also can establish other family traditions related to this holiday that will create warm memories our children will take with them for the rest of their lives.

The special holiday to celebrate Thanksgiving has a long history in our country. While not well known, the first Thanksgiving celebrated in the New World was not at Plymouth Rock but at the Berkley Plantation along the James River in Virginia on Dec. 4, 1619. It wasn't until two years later in the fall of 1621 that the Pilgrims conducted their first Thanksgiving at the colony at Plymouth. The pilgrims arrived in November of 1620 and endured a brutal winter. Only 50 out of 110 survived the first winter. After a good harvest in the fall of 1621 they had a Thanksgiving feast.

There are only two first-person accounts of the pilgrim's first Thanksgiving. One of them is Edward Winslow's account, which he wrote in a letter dated Dec. 12, 1621. The complete letter can be found in "Mourt's Relation: A Journal of the Pilgrims at Plymouth."

As President, George Washington issued a proclamation in 1789 naming Nov. 26 as a national day of thanks. In 1863 President Lincoln proclaimed that the last Thursday of November be set aside as a day "of Thanksgiving and praise to our beneficial Father." During the next 75 years, each president followed Lincoln by proclaiming a day each year for this purpose. In 1939 President Roosevelt set the date as the fourth Thursday of November, and this continued until 1941 when the U.S. Congress made the fourth Thursday of November the national holiday known as Thanksgiving.

Quote Of The Week:

"Our corn (that is, wheat) did prove well, and God be praised, we had a good increase of Indian corn, and our barley indifferent good, but our peas not worth the gathering, for we feared they were too late sown. They came up very well, and blossomed, but the sun parched them in the blossom. Our harvest being gotten in, our governor sent four men on fowling, that so we might after a special manner rejoice together after we had gathered the fruit of our labors. They four in one day killed as much fowl as, with a little help beside, served the company almost a week. At which time, amongst other recreations, we exercised our arms, many of the Indians coming amongst us, and among the rest their greatest king Massasoit, with some ninety men, whom for three days we entertained and feasted, and they went out and killed five deer, which they brought to the plantation and bestowed on our governor, and upon the captain and others. And although it be not always so plentiful as it was at this time with us, yet by the goodness of God, we are so far from want that we often wish you partakers of our plenty."

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

'BIG WHEELS' AND LITTLE CHURCHES

Background Scripture:
2 and 3 John.
Devotional Reading:
John 15:1-8.

It is understandable that you might read the three epistles of John and conclude hat they are pretty much alike, both in style and content. But, if you examine all three, you discover that, despite some similar concerns, there are also significant differences.

For example, 1 John is written probably to a group of churches, while 2 John is written to one church which John the Elder addresses as "the elect lady." On the other hand, 3 John is written to one person, Gaius.

The first two epistles are concerned with heresy or false teaching, whereas the third epistle is concerned with a local leader, Diotrephes, who is dominating a particular church and resisting the Elder's authority.

In 2 John we are concerned with itinerating teachers who are attempting to sway the local church to adopt doctrines that would pervert its Christ-centered basis. The Elder appeals to the church not to open the church to their influence.

In 3 John, however, we have a situation, which is quite the obverse: Diotrephes is refusing hospitality to itinerant teachers and the Elder is urging Gaius to provide these teachers with the hospitality that Diotrephes is withholding.

No Longer Christianity

One might conclude that 2 and 3 John have little or nothing to do with current Christian experience. When these letters were written, preachers and teachers itinerating among the various churches was a normal experience of the church. The church profited spiritually from many of these itinerants. There were some of these men, however, whose teaching was so contrary to Christian teaching so that it was no longer Christian.

The latter, who promoted themselves as "advanced Christians," were Gnostics who taught that the created physical world, including the human body, is evil. Therefore Gnostics denied the incarnation and some Docetist Gnostics claimed that Jesus had no physical body, but only appeared to do so.

What do these two epistles have to say to us today? First, even though the Elder regarded these people as dangerously teachers, he did not counsel the church to persecute or attack them. He simply didn't want them permitted to use their facilities. He opposed their teaching and closed the church to them, but he did not respond with violent words or actions.

Since then, however, churches have often risen violently against those with whom they disagreed. Today, many of the conflicts within and between denominations are carried on in a rancorous spirit. Violence does not protect the faith; it only harms it.

'Big Wheels'

Secondly, we find even more relevance in the background to 3 John. Diotrephes is not unlike the "big wheels" many of us have experienced in various congregations. These self-important people can keep a congregation "small" if not in numbers, at least in stature. All churches need leadership and in numerically small churches, leadership may be in short supply, but no church ever flourishes under the willful hand of an officious man or woman who glories in the power that he or she can accumulate.

Worst of all, these people generally do not see themselves the way others do. They see themselves as exemplary Christians, little realizing how harmful their example can be.

Often this happens in a church where the rest of the membership is unwilling to prevent such a person for taking and maintaining harmful control. These power-driven people gravitate to leadership vacuums which are created by a "Let-George-Do-It" attitude on the part of others. These Diotrephes rise to virtually absolute power only when and where they are permitted to do so.

Reigning in a Diotrephes is not contrary to the Elder's admonition: "that we love one another . . ." (2 John 5,6). Permitting a Diotrephes to dominate a congregation is not love, but indifference to the mission and purpose of the church. "Beloved, do not imitate evil but imitate good. He who does good is of God" (3 John 11).

RIGHT-SIZE YOUR TRACTOR FLEET...

...IT DOESN'T MATTER IF YOUR "FLEET" IS ONE OR TEN.

Introducing the AGCO GT Series...an all-new 45 to 73 PTO HP series designed exactly right to meet your needs...when a compact tractor doesn't have the heft you need and the larger mid-size is a bigger investment than you want to make.

Whatever your farming application—specialty crops, loader work, hay making — an AGCO GT might be just right for you. Off the farm, a GT provides the power, dependability and dealer backing you want to make your customers happy and your bottomline brighter.

GT45 • GT55 • GT65 • GT75
All four models are available with 2 or 4 wheel drive and in both platform or cab styles.

Bale feeding made easy

CHAINLESS BALE FEEDER BF5000

- Dual Prong Hydraulic Bale Lift
  This patented system makes loading fast, easy and ensures the bale is always in constant control
- Bale Lift Position Gauge
  Indicates lift height for spearing different sized bales in the centre
- Varying Speed Rotors
  The top rotor turns 3 times faster, fluffing the hay as the bale unravels
- Hydraulic Bale Platform
  The platform safely keeps the bale tight against the rotors without the use of chains - avoiding mechanical breakdowns

Take the hassle out of feeding large round bales with the Agway Chainless Bale Feeder. Its chainless operation provides safer, more consistent operation, keeping the bale in control. The BF5000 also reduces spoilage caused by bales sitting outside in bulky inefficient stationary units. The Agway Chainless Bale Feeder works as well in the barn as it does in the field, allowing you more freedom to decide when and where to feed your livestock. Talk to your local authorized Agway dealer for purchase details.

Nov. 14, 2003
BUTTER, CHEESE PRICES FLIP-FLOP

- Cheese prices continue to drop.
- Fresh butter prices firm up.
- Holiday sales look promising.

The market continued to show prices for butter and cheese going in opposite directions. Block cheese prices, which reflects sales of natural cheese, continued to weaken. Block cheese prices at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange fell from $1.4225 per pound on Monday to $1.36 per pound by Friday. Barrel cheese fell even more, from $1.3925 per pound on Monday to $1.2850 per pound by Friday.

Basically the market information suggests that cheese production is more than adequate to meet current and future needs. Some buyers are holding off on purchases and watching as prices drop. That strategy alone could not explain all of the recent price drops. Holiday purchases are under way, and that has helped firm up the market tone.

In short, more milk solids are finding their way into cheese production, and that is boosting inventory and available supplies, thus pressuring cheese prices.

The same cannot be said for the butter market. A relative shortage of surplus milk solids has meant a drop in the production of butter and nonfat dry milk, USDA reported this week that cream supplies have tightened up and churning activity is not keeping pace with fresh-butter demand. Thus inventories are dropping quickly.

The combination of lower stocks and strong demand is pressuring butter prices. Butter prices at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange this week rose from $1.2025 on Monday to $1.2250 by Friday.

What is unknown at this time is what the overall holiday demand for dairy products will be. There are signs that market activity is steady and we could be hopeful that demand will be strong for the fourth quarter. Those figures won't be available until sometime early in the first quarter of 2004.

But a strong holiday season could help reduce commercial inventories, and that would buoy prices as we enter 2004.

National Feeder Cattle Weekly Review

St. Joseph, Mo.
November 14, 2003
Report Supplied By USDA

NATIONAL FEEDER & STOCKER CATTLE SUMMARY for week ending Nov. 14 — Total Receipts: 534,400; last week 414,800; last year 493,200. Direct: 49,500; last week 43,100; last year 76,600. Video/Internet: 34,100; last week 1,700; last year 26,600. Auctions: 450,800; last week 370,000; last year 390,000. This week's reported auction volume included 24 percent over 600 lbs and 42 percent heifers. Compared to last week, steer and heifer calves sold steady to 4.00 higher with fancy strings of ranch calves in the mountain states trading as much as 6.00 higher. Calf demand was reportedly good in all areas, even though recent frosts and dry conditions in the winter wheat regions have curtailed much of the fall grazing opportunities. If you wanted to be a cattle buyer this week, you needed an outlet for calves as yearlings were scarce and fat cattle trading never fully developed. The few yearlings for sale this week sold near steady but feeder buyers found it hard to pay current levels for a handful of yearlings to put on their calf loads. Sizeable premiums were paid for weaned calves with condition and the ability to go straight to the feedlot and perform The calf market shrugged off sharp futures market losses as volatility continued this week. December CME Live Cattle contracts made limit moves three out of the five settlement days and ended 2.72 lower at 94.10.

Packers and cattle feeders couldn't agree on a fair price for this week's showlists. Feedlots cited the exhausted supply of market-ready cattle while packers reasoned lower bids from the slight losses in boxed beef cut- out values. Heavy Choice cut-outs lost 7.36 this week despite lower chain speeds. However, retailers are gearing up for Thanksgiving and have their minds and features made up for turkeys and hams. Consumer beef demand is much less seasonal and so far has remained strong through higher prices.

Much of this can be attributed to the late, great Dr. Robert C. Atkins whose high protein-low carbohydrate weight loss plan has swept the nation. Many Americans who struggle with a weight problem find it easier to follow the Atkins diet than other weight loss plans. The success and popularity of this diet has almost single-handedly changed the urban reputation of red meat and spawned countless products, from beer to bread, to help people make the Atkins diet a way of life. Many cattlemen can't believe they are losing weight on steak and eggs, allowing them to enjoy this cattle market and see their belt buckle - once again.

Envision Honors Warwick Leaders

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — On Wednesday evening, Warwick Township leaders were recognized for their transfer of development rights (TDR) program at the first Envision Lancaster County Leadership Awards presentation here at F&M College.

The award, presented by Commissioner Paul Thibault, recognizes the program for using TDRs, which have enabled the township — working with landowners, developers, Lancaster Farmland Trust, and Lancaster County Ag Preserve Board — to encourage industrial development within a designated growth area while protecting farms and farming within rural areas of the township.

More than 600 acres have been preserved to date. Warwick is the first township in Lancaster County to complete the cycle of purchase of development rights from farmers, according to Envision, which includes the sale of rights to a developer for use in the township's industrial receiving zone and the preservation of additional farmland with the cash generated by the sale.

"Now that's Lancaster County," said Thibault.

Farm Show 2004 Exhibitor Spotlight

Exclusive to Lancaster Farming

Gehl Returns To Farm Show

WEST BEND, Wis. — Gehl Company will be back at the Pennsylvania Farm Show this year, representing their full line of agricultural and construction equipment.

Terry Lefever, manager of shows and special events for the Wisconsin-based company, said Gehl had returned to the Farm Show this past January after a hiatus of about 15 years.

According to Lefever, reasons for Gehl's return included the new Exposition Hall, the way Farm Show management addressed equipment manufacturers as part of a renewed focus on agriculture, and the urging of local dealers.

The Gehl exhibit this year will again offer farmers the opportunity to familiarize themselves with Gehl products, including forage harvesters, mixer/feeders, mower/conditioners, skid loaders, and manure-handling equipment.

"We'll have a complete display representing our complete line of products," Lefever said.

The exhibit will also feature new offerings from Gehl, including a hay windrow merger.

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The 2006 Keystone Holstein 3-year-old Futurity entries are being accepted.

The Keystone Holstein Futurity is a project of the Pennsylvania Holstein Association to stimulate interest in breeding and developing outstanding registered Holsteins for production and type regardless of individual herd size.

Three nominations are required for each animal that competes. The first payment for the 2006 Futurity is due Dec. 15. Any breeder may nominate as many heifer calves as they wish. There is a guaranteed purse of $500 to the winner.

Eligibility: Any registered Holstein female of 87 percent parentage or higher bred and born in Pennsylvania between Sept. 1, 2002 and Aug. 31, 2003 is eligible for the Keystone Holstein Futurity.

Fees: First payment of $3/head with nomination paid by Dec. 15, 2003; second payment of $11/head paid by Sept. 15, 2004; and third payment of $20/head paid by Sept. 15, 2005.

Purse: All Futurity monies will be used only for Futurity purposes. The purse in this event will be divided, with 50 percent or at least $500 being awarded to the first place animal. The remainder will be divided among those competitors who show in the 2006 Futurity Class.

Refunds: All nomination fees are committed to the purse. No refunds will be made whether an animal competes or eligibility is discontinued.

Maintaining eligibility: Eligibility after an animal has been nominated is maintained by making subsequent payment by due dates as specified. Any animal sold after being nominated will remain eligible, as long as the animal meets all other Pennsylvania Holstein Show eligibility requirements. The owner will be notified when payments are due. Failure to make the next payment cancels eligibility.

Bureau Honors Hayes

During his tenure as agriculture secretary, Hayes secured funding for the expansion and renovation of the Farm Show Complex, construction of a new Meat Evaluation Center, and a new greenhouse at the agriculture department. The Department of Agriculture under Hayes' direction developed new programs for agriculture, such as the Pennsylvania Produce . . . Simply Delicious produce marketing program, development of the state's crop insurance program, the Export for Scholars program, and Next Generation Farmer Loan Program. Hayes was also one of the original six conferees in the legislature when the Pennsylvania's farmland preservation law was passed and, as agriculture secretary, moved the state's farmland preservation program to lead the nation.

Donaldson also noted that 11 years ago Hayes was honored by PFB. "Sam was presented 11 years ago at Pennsylvania Farm Bureau's annual meeting with the Barn Raiser Award, which recognizes continued leadership to the agriculture community. And tonight we take the opportunity to commend him again for his tireless devotion to Pennsylvania Agriculture."

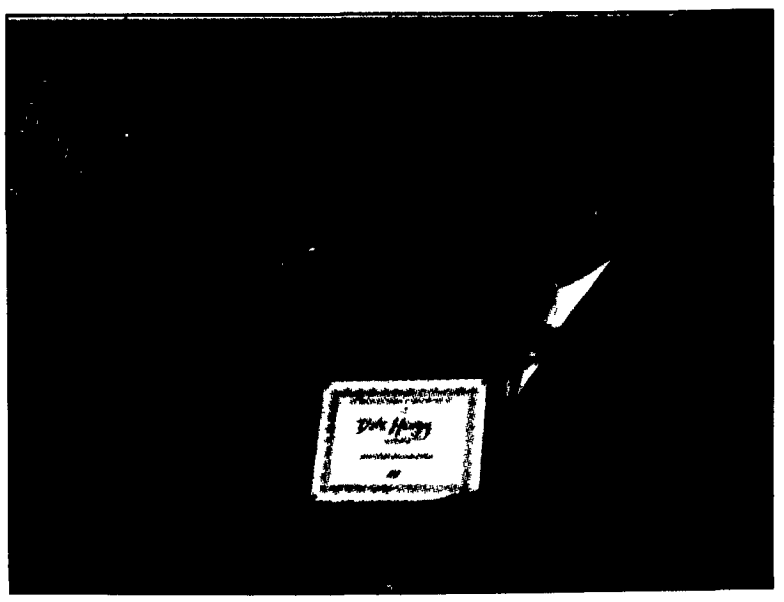
Hayes, from Warriors Mark, expressed his thanks for receiving the 2003 recognition.

"It is an honor to stand here once again in Hershey," he said. In recognition of his accomplishments in agriculture, he noted it was not done by him alone.

"It could not have been done without teamwork. It is not the achievement of one man or one woman or one part of Pennsylvania or one organization — it's teamwork. It is Pennsylvania Agriculture, this is the team that clothes, feeds, and shelters the 12 million Pennsylvanians and millions beyond our commonwealth's boarders."

Hayes concluded his remarks saying, he had "the greatest appreciation any one person can have for those who are farmers."

Becky and Matt Balliet of Drums were selected as this year's Young Farmer and Rancher Achievement Award.



Dale Heagy, left, won the YF&R discussion meet, earning a trip to the national contest. He is being congratulated by Shawn Miller, YF&R chairperson.

Dale Heagy of Lebanon County was also honored as the winner of the Young Farmer and Rancher (YF&R) Discussion Meet.

"This is an honor," said Heagy. "First of all I would like to thank the Young Farmer Rancher Committee for holding this contest and making it possible for us to participate in it."

Heagy also thanked his parents and brother who were not in attendance for taking care of work on the farm, enabling him to participate in the contest, and his wife for her support in preparing for the contest.

Andrea Semmel of Lehigh County was selected at the 2003 Young Farmer and Rancher Excellence In Agriculture Award winner.

"I thank Farm Bureau for all the opportunities that they have given me. I have grown so much in the last few years through the Young Farmer and Rancher Program, and I owe a lot to that," said Semmel.

Semmel also thanked her family for the guidance and support. "Without them, many of the things I have been able to accomplish, I would not have been able to accomplish without their support."

Lebanon, Lehigh County Young Farmers Win PFB Awards

HERSHEY (Dauphin County) — Dale Heagy of Lebanon County and Andrea Semmel of Lehigh County were selected as winners in two Young Farmer & Rancher (YF&R) contests recently during Pennsylvania Farm Bureau's 53rd annual meeting.

As PFB's Discussion Meet winner, Heagy received $500 cash from the Dodge Division of DaimlerChrysler, and an assortment of items from Stihl, which include a Farm Boss Chain Saw, protective chaps and a helmet safety system.

Heagy was one of 10 finalists who competed in the meet during the PFB Annual Meeting.

Heagy farms in partnership with his father, Ed, and brother, Darrell. They operate a 150-cow Holstein dairy farm in Annville. Dale is president of the Lebanon County Farm Bureau.

As PFB's Excellence in Ag Award winner, Semmel received $500 cash from the Dodge Division of DaimlerChrysler and a $250 lodging gift certificate from Choice Hotels International.

Semmel was one of three finalists who competed in the competition during the PFB Annual Meeting.

Semmel is employed full time at the family's registered Holstein and Brown Swiss dairy farm in Schnecksville. She is past chair of the PFB's Young Farmer and Ranchers Committee and is an ex-officio member. She is active in her county Farm Bureau and is a member of Pennsylvania Farm Bureau's Speaker's Bureau. Semmel won PFB's Discussion Meet in 2000.

Heagy and Semmel will also travel to the American Farm Bureau annual meeting in Hawaii in January to take part in national competition.

greetings from Governor Ed Rendell and congratulated PFB on another successful year.

Donaldson also recognized John Hileman, Holidaysburg for his service to the PFB board of directors as he leaves his post.

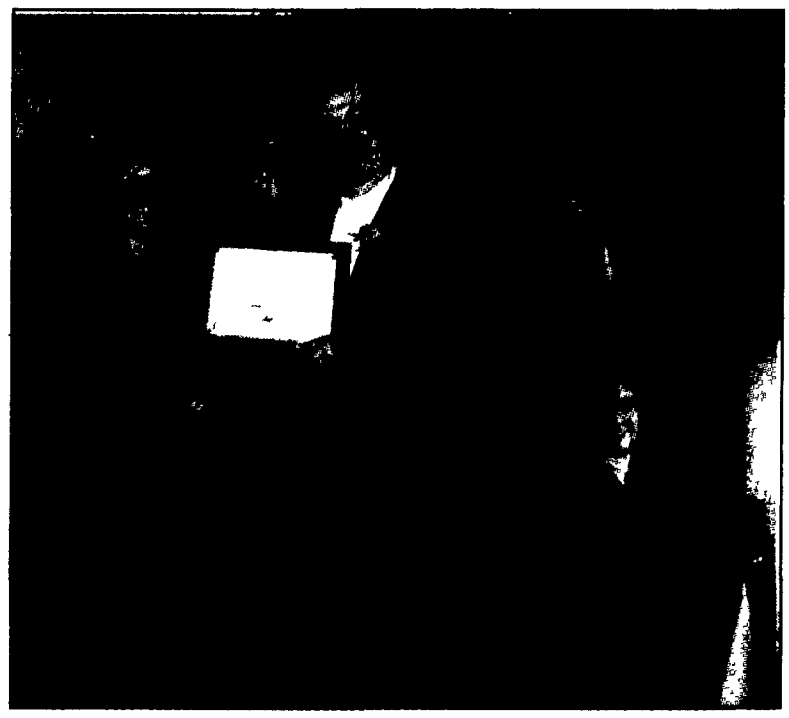
Hileman thanked the membership for the opportunity to serve on the board of directors and encouraged everyone to stay involved, saying "serve it well, and it will serve you."

Earlier in the day, Matthew and Barbara Balliet of Drums were named winners of Pennsylvania Farm Bureau's Young Farmer and Rancher (YF&R) Achievement Award during the organization's Annual Meeting.

Starting in 1998 with the purchase of a rundown farm in a neighboring county, Matthew Balliet single-handedly operates a 500-acre cash grain enterprise. He grows corn and soybeans, plus some hay and oats for a small herd of custom-raised beef cattle. Cropping on the farm is now 100 percent no-till.

Matthew Balliet has served on the Luzerne County Farm bureau board of directors. He chairs the county Farm Bureau's State Legislative Committee and serves as its national legislative spokesman. He and his wife Barbara have served on Pennsylvania Farm Bureau's YF &R State Committee.

Balliet, Heagy, and Semmel will travel to the American Farm Bureau annual meeting in Hawaii in January for national YF&R competition.



Andrea Semmel, left, is being congratulated by YF&R chairperson Shawn Miller for her selection as the YF&R Excellence In Agriculture Award winner.

Coverage Increased As Part Of AGR-Lite Insurance Expansion

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Secretary of Agriculture Dennis C Wolff has announced an expansion of the Adjusted Gross Revenue-Lite (AGR-Lite) Crop Insurance Plan.

"Pennsylvania's Department of Agriculture developed and introduced AGR-Lite last year as one of several initiatives driven by the department to help the state's farmers," said Wolff. "I am pleased that we are able to expand the program this year."

Wolff added that as a result of AGR-Lite's initial success, coverage was expanded from Pennsylvania excluding Philadelphia county, to 11 northeastern states including Connecticut, Delaware, Massachusetts, Maine, Maryland, New Hampshire, New Jersey excluding Hudson County, Rhode Island, Vermont, West Virginia and 52 counties in New York. Liability coverage has increased to $250,000 from $100,000. AGR-Lite continues to offer coverage for farm-raised crops, animals and animal products.

"Unlike many crop insurance programs, AGR-Lite is geared toward smaller growers and provides coverage that many have been unable to get before," said Wolff.

A list of participating crop insurance agents can be obtained from local USDA Farm Service Agency offices. Farmers can also contact the Risk Management Agency at www.rma.usda.gov/tools/agents or call (202) 690-2803. The deadline is January 31, 2004.

Standardbred Horse Auction Sales Approach $50 Million

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — About $50 million changed hands during the Standardbred Horse Sales Company Auction, Nov. 3-8, at the Pennsylvania Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg.

The 62nd Annual Auction of the Standardbred Horse Sales Company featured some of the finest horses from the United States and Canada and attracted buyers from around the world. Standardbreds, noted for speed and stamina are most frequently used in harness racing.

"This show attracts hundreds of international guests to the Harrisburg area," said Agriculture Secretary Dennis C Wolff. "We are fortunate to be home to world-class breeding facilities with highly sought after racehorses and breeding stock. This was a great event for the horse industry and the local economy."

"The newly renovated and expanded Farm Show Complex was an ideal venue for this show," said Dale Welk, Director of Operations for the Standardbred Horse Sales Company of Hanover, the event sponsor. "We had the space and accommodations we needed to conduct a world class sale in a world class facility."

Consigners from throughout the United States and Canada marketed yearlings and other Standardbreds during the sale. According to the Standardbred Horse Sales Company, this year's show increased to 1,936 horses selling for $49,998,400, or an average of about $25,826 per horse. In 2002, 1,717 horses sold for $49,229,300, averaging $25,428 per horse.

The annual Penn State Hybrid Reports are part and parcel of the Jan. 31 issue of Corn talk in Lancaster Farming. Also scheduled is a feature from a Columbia County 5-Acre Corn Club winner, silage reports, meeting updates, and a calendar of crop growing and management events.

Pallmans' Secret To Raising Turkeys

raising fresh turkeys and capons for the holiday season.

The turkeys and capons are sold on an order-only basis and can range in size from the smaller-sized turkeys that weigh about 12 pounds to larger turkeys weighing more than 40 pounds.

In addition to raising poultry — an estimated 4,500 capons and 8,500 turkeys seasonally — the Pallmans also operate a strawberry farm.

The poultry operation was begun in the late 1940s by Art "Dutch" Pallman and is run by his sons, Rich, Brian, and Bruce.

Today, this unique combination of the strawberries in the spring and the turkeys and capons for the holidays continues to equal a successful operation for the Pallman family.

When the strawberries are in season, customers can pick their own and can also see the turkeys when they arrive at the farm. This provides an unusual awareness opportunity for the Pallmans, for many of their strawberry customers return in the fall for their turkeys.

The secret to their success is quality.

"Most people who get their turkey here become a loyal customer," said Rich.

Customers are from Scranton and the surrounding areas, but some will travel several hours just for a turkey. People arrive from Binghamton, N.Y.; New Jersey; Philadelphia; and North Carolina.

This family operation has only 23 full-time employees and is a one-of-a-kind operation in northeastern Pennsylvania with a retail fresh turkey and capon business.

The turkeys will arrive on the farm in June and July, raised to the proper weights, and then processed on the farm just before Thanksgiving.

Because of the farm size and business type, the Pallmans continue to believe they are able to take good care of their birds, which results in a better finish. Rich said they give the birds a lot of "tender loving care," making sure they get outside and exercise. The farm can better maintain the litter and pay attention to detail.

Because of their "tender-loving-care" philosophy, the business has been built on word of mouth. The only other advertising they have is in the early fall, when they mail cards out to 4,500 people to notify them of ordering their turkey and when the pickup days will be. They also advertise for the Christmas season.

In addition to the retail business, Pallmans also sell gift boxes to small companies in the Scranton area and capons to distributors in New York City, eastern Pennsylvania, and Lancaster.

The health of the economy can play a role in how their company gift box sales are in one year. For the retail side, every year is about the same if not a little bit better.

Retail sales with customers are "not nearly as economically driven," said Rich, "because of the quality of the product that we have. And for that one meal for the year, people are willing to pay the price because they know the quality and they want that. The other aspect, the wholesale end, and dealing with the businesses — that is totally economy driven."

Rich also notes that 50 percent of their turkeys at Thanksgiving go to gift packages for small companies. However, there is no real risk to have a large volume of turkeys that cannot be sold since their companies are small.

Rich said, "when one business sector tends to struggle, another is having a good year." So they can easily pick up a new customer to make up the loss for one company in a year.

As the buisness continues to grow and change with the times, they continue to shift with the consumer demands. The one change that Rich notes is that the shift in the holidays from Christmas to Thanksgiving.

"Back in the '50s, Christmas would have been just as big if not a bigger holiday," said Rich. With the gift boxes, "we used to do as much for Christmas if not more as Thanksgiving."

The demand for capons continues to diminish for the Pallmans. They note that a younger generation that does not know what a capon is, and for those who do, a health-conscious public does not want them.

Their ability to market capons is based on the use of distributors, selling live birds to a Kosher plant in New York, and the ethnic groups still in the Scranton area.

However, a greater problem continues to arise for the Pallmans as the demand for capons continues to decline. The genetics are not being improved upon, and finding suitable birds is difficult.

In addition, finding someone to caponize the birds is expensive and problematical. They note that they only know of two people in Pennsylvania who still operate as independent contractors who will come to the farm to do the procedure.

Although the Pallmans count their location a blessing when considering the risks for poultry diseases such as avian influenza (A.I.), there are many distance challenges they handle that a farm in a poultry-rich area would not have. The challenges include feed, which is shipped from Lebanon County; having to go pick up their poults because of the small number they need, traveling eight hours away; and no local veterinarian.

The other challenge they face every year is free turkey giveaways at local stores.

"If there is anything that has impacted our business, that has," said Rich. "That has hurt our business a little bit. There is always going to be that person out there looking for the cheaper product."

Regardless of the challenges, the Pallmans move forward every year with the family turkey tradition. It is an enjoyable time through all of the hard work—especially on pickup days, when their parents, Dutch and Leona, meet with the customers.

"Pickup days — they (our parents) are still there and like to help distribute the turkeys. There are a lot of personal friendships that they have developed over the years because the people have been coming for so long," said Rich.

Although the Pallmans claim that they really have never had any unusual things occur in their operation, they claim their turkeys have graced the table of the former Gov. Robert Casey's home. In addition, their turkeys have rumored to have been sold through one of their distributors to Martha Stewart.

The challenges are worth it.

"It's the light at the end of the tunnel," said Bruce. "We will all go to our mother's (for Thanksgiving)." And one of their turkeys will be served.

The Pallmans offer larger-sized turkeys than can be found in the grocery store. Several turkeys will mature to a weight over 45 pounds.

Penn State Beef Cattle Sale Generates More Than $111,000

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The first beef cattle sale held by Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences since 1990 generated $111,035, attracted buyers from six states, exposed a new class of students to livestock marketing and renewed a time-honored tradition.

The Penn State Proud! Beef Cattle Sale, held Nov. 7 at the Beef-Sheep Center, included all of the Angus cows in the university's herd born before 1999, their calves, bred heifers and a 2-year-old bull. Commercial cows in the sale included bred cows, bred heifers, heifer calves and steer calves for a total of 99 head. Voytus Angus Farm of Pennsylvania bought the high-selling lot at $2,800.

"The most important reason Penn State owns cattle is for their educational value," says John Comerford, associate professor of dairy and animal science and beef cattle coordinator. "Sales give us an opportunity to teach students how to prepare cattle for merchandising and allow us to share Penn State genetics with other beef producers. This sale renewed the long-standing tradition of the prominence of Penn State's beef herd, while also putting emphasis on the future for continued growth and development within the program."

While the ample receipts from the sale were welcome, the biggest benefit was educational, say organizers. "Marketing is the key to financial success in production of any agricultural commodity," says Karen Vines, an instructor in the beef cattle marketing class that prepared students to be involved in the sale. "The class provided an opportunity to talk about marketing from a livestock perspective and gave the students exposure to activities in preparation for the sale that they may not have had otherwise. As a result of this sale, the students should have a greater understanding of the complexity of putting such a sale together and the attention to detail that is required in the preparation process."

Comerford expects this month's sale to be the first of many. "Our department made a strategic decision a few years ago to begin having regular beef sales," he says. "We produced more cattle to get ready for this one. Sales allow us to control our cattle inventory, to offer our highly desired genetics to other Angus breeders, to attract students and to reaffirm Penn State's reputation as an institution that maintains a first-class breeding operation."

Veneman Names Members To Mushroom Council

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Agriculture Secretary Ann M. Veneman today announced three appointments to the Mushroom Council.

"I am pleased that these individuals have agreed to serve on the Mushroom Council," said Veneman.

Newly appointed to three-year terms are: Region 1: Lisa Hemker of Rosemont, Minn.; Region 2: Michael W. Pratola III of Avondale, Pa.; and Region 3: Robert B. Crouch of Econdido, Calif. The appointees will serve on the nine-member council from Jan. 1, 2004 to Dec. 31, 2006.

Authorized under the Mushroom Promotion, Research, and Consumer Information Act of 1990, the council administers a national program of research and provides nutrition and industry information to consumers. Persons who produce or import an average of more than 500,000 pounds of mushrooms annually for the fresh market pay assessments to fund the program. USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service monitors the operations of the Mushroom Council. The council reimburses the federal government for the cost of administering the program.

NASS
Agriculture Counts

By Marc Tosiano
Pa. State Statistician

Editor's note: This is a monthly column from the Pennsylvania Ag Statistics Service (PASS), a field office of USDA's National Agricultural Statistics Service (NASS) in cooperation with the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (PDA). The Website is www.usda.gov/nass/.

2003 AG MEASUREMENTS UNDER WAY

Even though you returned an Ag Census form last year, we are about to conduct the usual annual surveys to measure the 2003 crop production and livestock and poultry inventories at the end of this year.

The upcoming surveys are for 2003 while the Ag Census asked about 2002 crop year and inventories.

The surveys mentioned below are conducted in all states in order to publish agricultural production or animal inventories at the county, state, and national level for 2003. To see the current or previous results of all these surveys, see our Website at www.usda.gov/nass/.

A Note Of Gratitude

In advance, I want to thank you for your time in these important measures of the 2003 season. It is only with your help that we can have accurate " Agriculture Counts."

Now, here is a brief list of the end of year surveys happening now through December.

County Statistics Survey

The Acreage and Production Survey was recently mailed to about 17,000 farms, which is 29 percent of all farms in Pennsylvania. The sample is unusually large so that county statistics can be published for various field crops, fruits, vegetables, livestock, and poultry.

County level statistics are crucial for those that assist growers from county offices of extension, conservation districts, Farm Service Agency, National Resources Conservation Service, and others.

To find county statistics, visit www.usda.gov/nass/ and click on "QuickSTATS." Many additional crop, livestock and poultry county statistics have been recently added at that site. Not all county statistics are yet in the QuickSTATS database; you can find other county information in our annual summary found at www.nass.usda.gov/pa/annsumm.htm.

Survey results for the 2003 crop year begins with county statistics for small grains in mid-February, with row crop data available in early March. County estimates for hay are usually released in mid-April. Tobacco, livestock, fruit, and potato data available later in the year starting with tobacco estimates in early June.

County agricultural statistics are extremely important to Pennsylvania farmers. Grower organizations, Extension, the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, and others rely on this information for research, defining, and promoting Pennsylvania agriculture.

Extension can re-evaluate staffing in each county office based on the number of farms raising certain crops or livestock. County data has been important to determining the Farmland Preservation Program and Growing Greener funding.

Utility companies use this data to reimburse farmers for crops lost in right-of-way maintenance. The Farm Service Agency uses this data to measure crop loss during times of drought or flooding.

Dec. 1 Crop/ Stocks Survey

This survey is going to about 1,300 Pennsylvania farmers. It measures final acreage, yields, and production for corn, soybeans, tobacco, hay, potatoes, sorghum, and grains stored on farms. A letter was sent to those selected and we will contact you for your help during early December.

Off-Farm Grain Stocks

This survey was mailed to about 200 Pennsylvania grain elevators and other off-farm storage facilities. This survey, when combined with on-farm statistics, will give a post-harvest picture of grains in storage here and across the Nation from 2003 crops and earlier.

Dec. 1 Hog Survey And Chicken/Egg Survey

Although we contact the larger hog or chicken operations every month, the Dec. 1 survey contacts many more of the medium and smaller operations. This more extensive survey sets the end-of-year inventory and leads to production, disposition, and income statistics for the year Dec. 1, 2002 through Dec. 1, 2003.

A letter was sent to about 325 hog owners and 100 owners of laying flocks that were selected. We will ask for your help during early December.

Annual Turkey Grower Survey

This survey was mailed to about 200 owners of turkeys in Pennsylvania. This survey will show how many turkeys were raised here and across the nation and the average prices received by growers for their birds.

End-Of-Season Fruit And Vegetable Survey

These two surveys were recently mailed to about 2,000 Pennsylvania fruit and vegetable growers and processors. It asks for acreage and production for the major fruit and vegetable in each state. In Pennsylvania, the survey is limited to apples, peaches, pears, cherries, grapes, sweet corn, tomatoes, snap beans, strawberries, cabbage, cantaloupes, and pumpkins. Some of these are asked and published by processing and/or fresh market.

What Comes Out Of All These Surveys?

The results of these surveys for all states can be found in late December and during January at www.usda.gov/nass/ by clicking on "Search for NASS information by." Personally, I recommend using the "Commodity " search tool to find the crop or animal of interest to you. Paper reports are still available to growers at no charge by calling us at (800) 498-1518.

Northeast Order Uniform Milk Price For October

BOSTON, Mass. — Erik F. Rasmussen, market administrator for the Northeast Federal Milk Marketing Order, has announced that the statistical uniform price (SUP) paid by milk dealers (handlers) regulated under the Northeast Order during October 2003 is $15.21 per hundredweight ($1.31 per gallon) for milk delivered to plants located in Suffolk County, Mass. (Boston). The producer price differential (PPD) portion of the SUP for October is $0.82 per hundredweight for milk delivered to plants located in Suffolk County, Mass. The PPD ($0.82) combined with the corresponding month's Class III price ($14.39) equals the SUP ($15.21).

The SUP represents a benchmark minimum price paid to dairy farmers, prior to allowable deductions, for farm milk containing 3.5 percent butterfat, 2.99 percent protein, and 5.69 percent other solids. The actual price received by an individual dairy farmer will vary as the composition of a farm's milk differs from the component benchmarks. The PPD represents each producer's share of the value generated by the marketwide pool. The PPD is added to the payment producers receive for their milk's components and is adjusted for the location of the receiving plant(s). The SUP and PPD decrease by scheduled amounts the further away the plant(s) receiving the producers' milk are from Suffolk County, Mass.

The Class prices for milk pooled in October are as follows: Class I, $17.52 (Suffolk County, Mass); Class II, $10.84; Class III, $14.39; and Class IV, $10.16. Comparable prices for October 2002 were: Class I $13.40, Class II $11.12, Class III $10.72, and Class IV price $10.50. The component values for October 2003 are protein, $3.2815 per pound; butterfat, $1.2553 per pound; other solids, $0.0311 per pound; and nonfat solids, $0.6642 per pound.

Milk receipts from producers totaled 1.923 billion pounds. Class I utilization, milk processed as beverage milk, was 49.7 percent of producer milk receipts. The Class I utilization was 48.5 percent in October 2002.

The manufacture of Class II products such as cream, ice cream, yogurt, and cottage cheese utilized 20.1 percent of producer milk. Milk used to manufacture Class III products such as cheese (American and Italian) and evaporated and condensed products utilized 25.9 percent of total milk receipts. Class IV usage (butter, nonfat and whole milk powder) equaled 4.3 percent of the total.

Berks County Holstein Club Celebrates Winners

Youth Excelled At Quiz Bowls, Princess Pageant, Production Records

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

VIRGINVILLE (Berks Co.) — Berks County Holstein breeders gathered for their annual meeting at the Grange Hall here Nov. 14.

The club exceeded its membership goals this year, according to a report from the Pennsylvania Holstein Association.

The event included a banquet dinner, an update on Berks County Holstein Club activities, and award presentations to youth and others for their accomplishments in the world of Holsteins this year.

Youth production winners included Matthew Schantz, for his 2-year-old cow "Fabreeze" with 32,288 pounds of milk, 1,226 pounds of fat, and 942 pounds of protein, and aged cow "Edie" with 1,260 pounds of fat; Eric Troutman for 2-year-old "Bolero" with 1,014 pounds of fat; Amber Hallowell for her 3-year-old "Sophia" with 34,620 pounds of milk and 1,061 pounds of protein; Jesse Bitler for 3-year-old "Bonsai" with 1,253 pounds of fat; Megan Schantz for her 4-year-old "Blossom" with 34,237 pounds of milk and 1,002 pounds of protein, and aged cow "Summer" with 37,213 pounds of milk and 1,043 pounds of protein; and Jason Troutman for 4-year-old "Rain" with 1,320 pounds of fat.

Tim and Teresa Kissling of Hidden-View Holsteins, Robesonia, posted the highest breed age average (B.A.A.) in the county, at 107.7 percent.

L'il Dairy Miss Jessica Duncan shares a story called "Why I Like Ice Cream." Joining her is Pamela Werley, Pennsylvania Alternate Dairy Princess.

Mike Davis and Dave Rice were named new directors at the meeting, with Charlie Seidel continuing for a second term.

David Lentz of the Pennsylvania Holstein Association commended the club for exceeding membership goals and promoting the breed.

"The grassroots is where it all starts," he said.

One major fundraiser for the club is its fall and spring cheese sales. Coordinator Dean Hartman reported net earnings of more than $2,500 in cheese sales for the year.

Brent Schuler spoke about the success of the Berks County senior dairy bowl quiz team, made up of Chad Mertz, Doug and Dave Sattazahn, and Schuler. The team placed fourth in the senior division at the National Holstein Convention in June, and later took fifth place overall at the North American International Livestock Exposition in Louisville, Ky.

Pamela Werley, Pennsylvania Alternate Dairy Princess and Berks countian, presented the speech that helped her win her title at the state pageant in September.

Titled "Farming, Yesterday and Today," Werley's speech outlined the realities of modern dairying, in contrast to the bygone image some people may have of farm life.

"It's time everybody realized the reality of dairy farming," Werley said, calling it "an important, highly specialized, and diverse industry."

L'il Dairy Miss Jessica Duncan read a story called "Why I Like Ice Cream," ending with a milk moustache to represent the letter "m" in "cream."

Werley also hosted a dairy quiz show in which three married couples participated, women against men. The women's team won.

About 50 people attended the meeting.

'TIS THE SEASON FOR A CHANGE IN MILKING ROUTINE

Beth Grove
Extension Agent — Dairy/Environment
Lancaster County

It can be tempting to look for a quick fix to lower somatic cell counts. We often try the latest mastitis treatment, teat dip, or vaccine in an attempt to lower a herd's SCC. Sometimes these products work well alone, but often a single product will not result in significant changes in udder health.

There is one "magic" solution for improving milk quality in a herd, and it costs very little — a careful milking procedure.

Why not take a closer look at your milking routine? Small adjustments at milking time can add up to big improvements in udder health, with cows milking out faster and more completely. If you are struggling with milk quality on your farm, here are some suggestions for changes in your milking routine:

- Treat milking the herd as the most important job on the farm. Set a routine and make certain everyone who milks follows a set procedure. Not everyone is suitable to be milking cows. If you have family members or hired help that strongly dislike milking, find another job for them — they will nearly always cost you money.
- Strip 3-5 squirts of milk from each cow before predipping or washing. The first milk taken from a quarter is usually high in bacteria counts. Forestripping will allow you to find flakes or abnormal milk and check the udder for swelling. In addition, stripping will help cows milk out more quickly by stimulating milk letdown more strongly. Finally, use a strip cup (particularly in tiestalls) so that the milk and bacteria do not contaminate the bedding.
- Predip with a "proven" product. Ask your supplier for evidence of the effectiveness of a teat dip in preventing new infections. Never use "home-brew" dips without labels or ingredient tags. It is important to allow the predip to remain on the teats for 30 seconds before wiping — this allows the dip to work by killing most of the bacteria on the teat end.
- Use a non-siphoning dip cup, not a spray bottle! Although some may disagree with this opinion, it is very difficult to completely cover the teats with a sprayer. Unfortunately, if you do get the teats well covered when using a spray bottle, you will often use more product than necessary. Clean the dip cup between milking times and after infected cows.
- Dry teats completely with individual paper towel or cloth. Tiny drops of water on the teat end can be forced back into the udder by the unit during "squawks" or liner slips — often carrying bacteria and manure with them.
- Attach the milking unit within 1 to 1½ minutes after the cow is first prepped. Oxytocin peaks in the bloodstream several minutes after a cow is stimulated; peak milk letdown is best achieved through forestripping plus 20-30 seconds of vigorous wiping. Attaching the units in 1 to 1½ minutes after prepping will cause cows to milk out faster, and the amount of milk harvested may be increased by 5 percent or more per cow. In a tiestall barn, it is common for cows to be prepped several minutes ahead. Avoid this practice, as it can lower peak milk flow and increase milking time! In parlors, you may need to prep only 2 or 3 cows at a time before attaching the milking units.
- Don't "overmilk" cows. Attaching a milker to a cow who has not let down her milk can cause overmilking as easily as leaving the unit on too long. The result is often teat end damage, making the cow's udder more easily infected by bacteria. Inspect teat ends for problems regularly. Check that automatic takeoffs are set properly, and monitor the vacuum level regularly on the system.
- Post-dip teats immediately after the cow is finished. Cover the entire teat with post-dip, because this prevents bacteria from feeding and multiplying on the milk film remaining on the teat end. Encourage cows to stand for 30 minutes before lying down, which will allow teat ends to close. Post milking teat dipping can reduce the incidence of environmental mastitis by more than 50 percent and is one of the most effective mastitis controls available.
- Milk infected cows last. This will prevent the spread of contagious organisms such as Staph aureus via the milking equipment or your hands to clean cows in the herd.
- During severely freezing or windy weather, don't stop dipping your cows! Before turning cows outside at 20 degrees Fahrenheit or below, post-dip cows and wait one or two minutes before wiping excess product off the teats. Avoid using salves or udder creams when cows are exposed to freezing conditions.

Cornell And Penn State To Manage Northeastern IPM Center

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Penn State and Cornell University will share a four-year, $4.3 million grant from the U.S. Department of Agriculture to jointly administer the Northeastern Integrated Pest Management Center.

Established in 2000, the Northeastern IPM Center promotes practical pest management solutions for urban and rural settings in Pennsylvania, New York, Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey, West Virginia, the New England states and the District of Columbia. The grant represents a 44 percent annual increase over the center's previous level of funding.

The center, one of four regional IPM centers across the country, is the hub for a network of university researchers and extension specialists and serves as a clearinghouse for print and electronic information supporting the adoption of IPM.

The Northeastern IPM Center's co-directors are John Ayers, professor of plant pathology and director of Penn State's Pesticide Education Program, and James VanKirk, Cornell senior extension associate. VanKirk oversees daily operations of the center.

"The increase in funding will enable us to develop new programs and enhance support for users of pest management information, including farmers, nursery operators, park and turf managers, building superintendents, pest control operators, homeowners, gardeners and others," Ayers said.

Much of the center's work is carried out by working groups organized around six program areas: fruits; vegetables; greenhouse and ornamentals; field, forage and livestock; communities; and public health. In addition, the center coordinates seven "state network projects" involving all 12 states in the region.

New initiatives will include competitive grants programs to support the development of IPM planning tools, the creation of new IPM publications and the establishment of IPM research or extension projects. In addition, the center will organize a new biannual conference for those in the region with an interest in IPM issues. The conference will help prioritize IPM needs and promote new collaborations among participating institutions.

Farm Link Offers Business Planning, Apprentice, And Loan Programs

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — To tackle the continuing decline in new farm entry demonstrated by the precipitous 58 percent drop in new farmers under age 35 from 1982 to 1997, Pennsylvania Farm Link will offer a comprehensive approach to getting into farming.

Training in business planning and marketing skills, a 12-week, 36-hour course will begin Jan. 6, 2004 at the Manheim Central High School.

During the course, producers will explore niche markets, distribution channels, production options, management controls, business structure, cash-flow management, and financing.

The focus of the course is on the individual producer's interest, resources, and needs. Participants will walk through developing a business plan and come out of the course with a unique plan to develop their farm business and/or apply for a loan.

In addition, new farmers can participate in a 2000 hour apprentice program certified by both U.S. and Pa. Labor and Industry. Apprentices of legal working age are paired with a farm business employer in their chosen specialty.

The program includes 2000 hours of both practical on-farm work experience and 144 hours of theoretical class instruction related to the selected enterprise. Participating farmer businesses must comply with the Fair Labor Standards Act. Wage rates progress as apprentices successfully complete their instruction. Apprentice may complete the program of their own family's farm.

After completing the business training and the apprentice program, participants are eligible for living loans through Heifer International.

All kinds of productions practices and farming enterprises can participate. To learn more about this new program, contact Pennsylvania Farm Link at (717) 664-7077.

Equine Medical Center Appoints Veterinary Advisory Board Members

LEESBURG, Va. — A Veterinary Advisory Board, comprised of Virginia- and Maryland-based equine practitioners, has been established to help the Marion duPont Scott Equine Medical Center continue its quest to provide excellence in equine healthcare for the region.

Similar to the duties performed by members of the Equine Medical Center's Council, Veterinary Advisory Board members will provide advice and counsel to the Center's director and staff as they develop policies and procedures designed to meet the needs of the equine industry and the constituencies it serves. Members will also work to facilitate communication with clients and other referring veterinarians.

"Servicing the needs of referring veterinarians is key to the Equine Medical Centers success," said Dr. Nathaniel A. White, II, interim director of the Marion duPont Scott Equine Medical Center. 'This group of experienced practitioners will provide valuable advice about the hospital's function, business practices and communications with veterinarians and clients. By working as a team, the regional veterinary community can share technology and expertise to raise the level of horse health care and advance the profession. I am pleased with the new board members willingness to help in this effort."

Members of the newly-formed EMC Veterinary Advisory Board include: Dr. Scott Anderson, Ashland, Va.; Dr. Paul Anikis, Marshall, Va.; Dr. R. Reynolds Cowles Jr., Free Union, Va.; Dr. Michael Erskine, Woodbine, Md.; Dr. Richard Forfa, Beallsville, Md.; Dr. Deborah Graham, Davidsonville, Md.; Dr. Paula Horne, Purcellville, Va.; Dr. William McCormick, Middleburg, Va.; Dr. Nicholas Meittinis, Laurel, Md.; Dr. Carol Sabo, Haymarket, Va.

Northeast SARE Honors Cheesemaker

BURLINGTON, Vt. — Courtney Haase, a farmstead cheesemaker from New Hampshire, has been named a Sustainable Farmer Educator by the Northeast Sustainable Agriculture Research and Education (NESARE) program.

Haase is the owner of Nunsuch Dairy and Cheese, a licensed goat dairy that produces and sells milk and cheese.

The operation has been named a New Hampshire Farm of Distinction, and the Haase's goat cheese has been voted the best in her state by New Hampshire Business Magazine. The farm has also been showcased on Fox Network's Breakfastime, PBS's Cooking with Gail Grecio, Better Homes and Gardens, Country Home Magazine, and in travel books and articles about the Lakes Region of New Hampshire.

The NESARE award makes it possible for Haase to do more speaking, run more workshops, and travel to talk to groups interested in processing and adding value, direct marketing, licensing, and issues that relate to dairy products in general and goat milk production. The SARE grant covers travel expenses, meals, and also compensates participating farmers for their time.

For many years, Haase has been directing the Small Dairy Project, which trains farmers to make informed decisions about whether to become value-added producers or whether to pursue other options that will allow them to sustain their farm.

Over the years, Haase has worked with over 200 farmers in the U.S. and Canada, and has developed a program for loaning a pasteurizer that allows farmers to try out making farmstead cheese and other milk products before committing to a large investment.

"I believe in small farms," Haase said. "I believe in the dream of all farmers to have a profitable and productive establishment."

To talk to Haase about her work, or to see if she is available for a workshop or conference, contact Cornell Cooperative Extension or Haase directly at (603) 927-4176 or e-mail nunsuch@conknet.com. Haase's mailing address is HC 65, Box 45, Bradford, NH 03221.

For more information on small dairy farms, cheese-making and a variety of other small farm and beginning farmer topics, visit the Cornell Small Farms Program Website at www.smallfarms.cornell.edu.

Wolff Opposes Butter Release

ter on the commercial market and maintain the current policy of not allowing butter in the school lunch and commodity supplemental programs, despite protests from Pennsylvania's dairy industry.

"Rather than selling the butter, our department advocated donating the butter through a network of regional food banks and distribution partners," Wolff said. "We may have been able to aid those in need during this difficult economic time."

In 1996, U.S. Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman, removed butter from the school lunch, summer food service, and child and adult care food programs.

Wolff recently met with Eric M. Bost, USDA undersecretary for Food, Nutrition and Consumer Services, and Congressmen Tim Holden and Don Sherwood to discuss the possibility of putting butter back in the programs as early as 2005.

"I will continue to work with the congressional delegation to ensure that our dairy farm families receive a fair price for their products," said Wolff.

PLANNING FOR WATER PROTECTION

George Hurd
Extension Educator For Community And Economic Development
Capitol Region

A new online land use decisionmaking tool is available to help local government planners measure the water quality impacts of land use changes.

The tool is the Long-Term Hydrologic Impact Assessment (L-THIA) model. The L-THIA model was developed by Purdue University in partnership with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA Region 5), and the Local Government Environmental Assistance Network (LGEAN).

To use the L-THIA model, local governments provide information about their location, the proposed land use change, and the area's soil type. The L-THIA model then uses community-specific climate data to produce estimates of changes in recharge, runoff, and nonpoint source pollution resulting from the proposed development.

According to LGEAN, results from using the L-THIA model can be used to generate community awareness of potential long-term problems and to support planning aimed at minimizing disturbance of critical areas. L-THIA is also an ideal tool to identify the best location of a particular land use so as to have minimum impact on a community's natural environment.

L-THIA is available for free on the LGEAN web site. Users only need an internet browser to use the tool. A downloadable GIS extension is also available for local government officials with ArcView software. To use L-THIA, visit LGEAN's "Tools and Resources" page at www.lgean.org/html/exchange.cfm and select the "Land Use Impacts on Water Quality Model."

LGEAN has also developed a toolkit of innovative software and databases which would be of assistance to local governments in the management of drinking water, storm water, wastewater, and watersheds. The tools are interactive software or documents that require user input. They are designed to help users perform operations and calculations necessary to fulfill environmental reporting requirements or guide the development of a helpful environmental program. In addition to the water tools, there is assistance for air quality, energy, solid waste management, hazardous waste management, and smart growth. There is a link to this toolkit at the LGEAN's "Tools and Resources" page.

Through its Website, LGEAN provides environmental management, planning, funding, and regulatory information for local government elected and appointed officials, managers, and staff. Located at www.lgean.org, LGEAN enables local officials to interact with their peers and others online. In an effort to reach all local governments, LGEAN also manages a toll-free telephone service (877) 865-4326. LGEAN is not intended to provide on-site compliance assistance to local governments, but to give easy access to information and tools.

What makes LGEAN special is a partnership that has been forged by the organizations that compose it. The International City/County Management Association developed and manages the network. The partnering organizations are the American Water Works Association, Air & Waste Management Association, Environmental Council of the States, The International Municipal Lawyers Association, National Association of Counties, Public Entity Risk Institute, Solid Waste Association of North America, Water Environment Federation, and EPA. These organizations working together have developed a very effective resource to help communities meet their environmental responsibilities.

Kohl, Ledman To Headline Dairy Stakeholders Conference

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — David Kohl, professor emeritus in Virginia Tech's Department of Agricultural and Applied Economics, and Mary Keough Ledman, founder of Keough Ledman Associates' dairy economic consulting firm, will speak at the Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholders' annual conference Dec. 10-11 at the Holiday Inn, Grantville.

Joined by 13 other presenters, Kohl and Ledman will lead discussions focusing on the Northeast dairy infrastructure's future and how we as an industry can come together to "Set the Pace."

Kohl's presentation Wednesday, Dec. 10, will address the state of the U.S. dairy industry and the role that each dairy region plays in contributing to a national and increasingly global dairy industry.

Thursday, Dec. 11, Ledman will focus her discussion on why one size does not fit all when you look at the makeup of our nation's dairy producers and how all-sized producers can succeed.

Registration fee is $90 per person.

For information on group discounts and hotel rates or to receive a registration brochure, contact Michelle Jaymes Parks at (717) 948-6609 or by e-mail at michelle@padairystake.org.

State Completes Surveillance

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Health Secretary Dr. Calvin B. Johnson, Environmental Protection Secretary Kathleen A. McGinty, and Agriculture Secretary Dennis Wolff recently announced that the state has completed its West Nile surveillance efforts for 2003.

"With the recent frosts that have taken place across the state, mosquito activity has dropped off," Dr. Johnson said. "With little or no mosquito activity, the threat of human infection from West Nile virus is much lower."

"The county West Nile coordinators were tremendous in helping us track the virus and find mosquitoes this summer," McGinty said. "Working with our county partners, we developed a better understanding of where mosquitoes breed and where we need to target our control efforts in the coming years."

"Our thanks also go to horse breeders and other horse operations for their vigilance and help during this past year," Secretary Wolff said. "They, too, were integral in helping us to identify mosquito-breeding sites. The West Nile virus situation could have been far worse without the collective awareness of these people."

West Nile virus, when transmitted to people, can cause West Nile fever or encephalitis. Anyone can get the virus, but older adults and people with compromised immune systems have the highest risk of developing severe illness because their bodies have a harder time fighting off disease.

As of Nov. 3, 221 Pennsylvanians have tested positive for West Nile virus exposure this year. Seven have died. Last year, 62 cases of human West Nile virus were detected in Pennsylvania, resulting in nine fatalities.

Human West Nile testing will continue to be provided by the Department of Health during the winter months.

Dig-In-The-Dirt Field Day A Success

Field day attendees listen in on the benefits of the Quadtrac-pan combo from Case-IH representatives.

MT. PLEASANT, Del. — Hoober Inc. recently hosted a "Dig-In-The-Dirt" field day featuring the latest innovations in dirt moving equipment.

Contractors and excavators were given an opportunity to ride and drive Case-IH STX Steiger tractors, pulling scraper pans from manufacturers such as Reynolds and Ashland.

Charlie Hoober, president of Hoober Inc., showed customers the benefits of the Steiger-pan combination.

"With the innovations these companies are making in the dirt moving business, we're really able to deliver high-quality products that are more efficient and productive when it comes to moving dirt."

Case-IH tractors have always been popular performers on agricultural acreage around the world. Now these reliable machines are finding more work in land-leveling and commercial scraper markets as well. Special scraper versions of STX Steiger tractors are available from 325 to 450 PTO Horsepower. With sturdy axles, built-in-weight, and an efficient powerplant under the forward-sloped hood, these units are ideal for scraper work.

One STX Steiger model called the Quadtrac has tracks instead of wheels, combining traction and flotation in one package and enabling you to work in conditions that are normally too wet for conventional pans. As one veteran 28-year pan operator put it, "Once I started running the Quadtrac, it didn't take me long to know this machine was going to help me do my job better. It's much faster than other pans and it loads twice as fast."

Some of the other equipment at the field day included Kubota excavators and tractor-loader-backhoes, Grouser front-mount construction blades, Manitou telehandlers, Spectra Precision laser leveling systems, and a Teagle big bale chopper.

'Reach For The Dream' At 2004 Sustainable Farming Conference

Bill Henning
Small Farms Specialist
Cornell University Extension

Daydream for a moment. You are in the midst of your milking herd. You have just turned your cows into a new paddock. The only noise you hear is that of succulent green grass succumbing to the predation of voracious appetites. The living mowing machines are contentedly harvesting and processing their nutrients while simultaneously recycling fertility back from whence it came. Your cows are consuming some of the highest quality; lowest cost feed known to exist on Gods green earth.

Looking at the last paddock, the remains of a salad bar are being cleaned up by slick young heifers following literally in their mothers foot steps. Ahead of the cows lies a dark green, luxuriant carpet of vegetative mass that promises an abundance of some of the most economical milk that will ever be produced.

The cows are healthy. They are in their natural habitat doing exactly what nature intended they should do. Your son and daughter are at your side. One just handled the gate for the cows while the other handled the gate for the heifers. No need to worry no PTO shafts involved.

Surveying your land to its boundaries reveals a panorama of more fields like the one youre standing in. Milk production could be higher, but then the cows wouldnt be as healthy. The vet bills are down, as well as feed costs, machinery costs, fuel bills, electric bills, breeding costs, replacement costs, and the ware and tear on buildings has been reduced. Is it any wonder there is more money left for the family?

Aside from the money you also have more time for that family. Farming is good! Life is good!

Does this sound too good to be true? It is extremely difficult to achieve something you cant conceive. But believe it or not, this has been the experience of more than one grazier.

Top quality grasses and legumes provide the foundation for the above dream come true. Given adequate moisture and the right management, these forages can increase profitability on those poorly drained side hills or the best river bottoms.

You have the opportunity to learn more about these top quality forages. You can have a sounding board for all your forage questions. What varieties work best together? What forages are best for stockpiling? At what vegetative state can you expect the best milk yield per acre? What forages stand up best to early spring grazing? These are just some examples.

You bring your questions and also learn from the questions of others. We'll do our best to provide the answers. Just attend the Low Input Sustainable Farming Conference at Jordan Hall — New York State Experiment at Geneva, Saturday, Jan. 17, 2004.

Sit in on the Grass Management Panel composed of four seed company representatives from New York and Pennsylvania who have agreed to answer your questions in a generic manner. Panel Participants include: Greg Davis of Seedway, Hall, NY; Tim Fritz of Kings Agri-Seed, Ronks, PA; Rod Porter of AgriCulver, Trumansburg, NY; and Tim Gutteridge of Barenbrug, Milton, PA.

When was the last time you had this opportunity? For more information or a registration packet just call Cornell Cooperative Extension of Yates County at (315) 536-5123.

FARM SHOW 2004

What a treat we have in store for the annual Lancaster Farming issue of Farm Show!

Scheduled for the Jan. 10 issue: features from farmers who are going to the winter agricultural showcase event at the Farm Show Complex and their experiences in attending the great event in Harrisburg. Also scheduled: the annual FFA Keystone Degree winners and a complete schedule of events, including the many demonstrations for farmers during Farmer Days.

Auburn Township farmland in Susquehanna County, owned by Ted and Becky Place, is part of Pennsylvania's Farmland Preservation Program, first in the nation in number of acres preserved.

Applications Sought For Farmland Preservation

MONTROSE (Susquehanna Co.) — Applications are now available for the 2004 farmland preservation program. The Susquehanna Country Agricultural Land Preservation Board was established by the County Commissioners in 1989 to help preserve farmland in Susquehanna County by administering a program to purchase agricultural conservation easements from landowners in the county.

Agricultural Conservation Easement defined: A legal agreement the property owner makes that restricts the land to agricultural production in perpetuity while retaining private ownership. As the private ownership changes, the restrictions remain with the land.

To date 18 farms containing a total of 4264 acres have been preserved in Susquehanna County. The Susquehanna County Board is currently working with two additional farms consisting of over 200 acres to become part of the county program by the end of this year.

The Susquehanna County program is part of the Pennsylvania Farmland Preservation Program. With over 263,325 acres consisting of 2,245 farms, the Pennsylvania State Farmland Preservation Program is first in the nation in number of acres preserved and is continuing to preserve farmland at a faster rate than any other state.

Local funding comes from an annual allocation by the Susquehanna County Commissioners. These county funds are matched by the State program, which also awards grant money to counties.

To be eligible, farms must be located in an agricultural security area; contain at least 50% of soils in class I through IV, land must be contiguous acreage of at least 50 acres in size unless the tract is at least 10 acres in size and is either utilized for a crop unique to the area or is contiguous to a property that has a perpetual agricultural conservation easement in place, the land must contain the greater of 50% or 10 acres of harvested cropland, pasture or grazing land.

Susquehanna County program applications will be accepted between November 1, 2003 and January 15, 2004. Each application is ranked against all other eligible applicants. A farm's rank is based on the quality of farmland, stewardship, and the likelihood of the conversion of the farm to non-agricultural uses.

For an application and/or more information, contact Evie Goff at the Susquehanna Co. extension office in Montrose (717) 278-1158 or one of the Susquehanna County Board members. The Susquehanna County Board members are: Dewey Lyon, Byron Hunsinger, Clarence Smith, Eleanor Kurosky, John Benscoter, Brian Gesford and Jim Wolf.

Thumbs-Up For Crops Despite Performance Challenges

COLUMBUS, Ohio — With late plantings, excessive rainfall, a myriad of insects and diseases and poor plant development, it seemed Ohio corn and soybean growers would be throwing in the towel on another disappointing season.

But to the surprise of many, Ohio's top agronomic crops are outperforming expectations with record yields projected. According to the Ohio Agricultural Statistics Service, as of Sept. 1 the corn harvest was projected at 145 bushels per acre. If the number stays true, it would make it Ohio's second-highest harvest in history — behind the 147 bushels per acre harvested in 2000. Soybean yields are projected at 44 bushels per acre, nearly an all-time high. By comparison, Ohio growers harvested 88 bushels per acre of corn and 30 bushels per acre of soybeans last year.

Only a small percentage of the crops have been harvested so far, but Ohio State University agronomists like what they see.

"The soybean crop is a bit of a surprise. The crop is turning out better than expected despite the weather and diseases," said Ohio State Extension agronomist Jim Beuerlein. "Every time we go through one of these years we are amazed at the resiliency of the soybean crop."

Excessive rainfall throughout much of the growing season did little to impact the crop's development. Early-planted fields (late April through May) are pulling off 40-plus bushel-per-acre yields. Soybeans planted after June 15 may have been damaged by the earlier-than-normal frost that hit Ohio the beginning of October. The later the planting, the greater the loss due to frost, said Beuerlein.

"Overall, we had a lot of good things happen to us that's no weeds, good stands and despite a lot of rain, it was good rainfall distribution," Beuerlein said.

Rains did bring disease, and soybeans were plagued with plenty of pathogens. Even so, the crop performed well, said Ohio State plant pathologist Anne Dorrance.

"It was a very challenging year in that samples we received had more than one pathogen associated with it," said Dorrance, with the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center in Wooster, Ohio. "But all these pathogens tend to be associated with poor drainage, something that growers can remedy by adjusting drain tiles or taking measures to reduce compaction."

In addition to the common Phytophthora root rot, soybeans were also affected by Sclerotinia stem rot, a disease not seen in Ohio for several years, and sudden death syndrome, present in more acres this year than ever recorded.

"We had all these diseases out there, and in some areas there are dead spots and the beans are stunted and not maturing, but overall the bean fields look fairly good," said Dorrance. "Soybeans have an interesting ability to compensate for lost neighbors. They will get very bushy and take up the space where other plants have been. So at 100,000 plants per acre you will get yield equal to what you would get at 200,000 plants per acre."

Dorrance said wise selection of varieties with a good resistance package to many of the plant pathogens helped boost the crop from under dire environmental conditions. But growers now need to look to next year.

"What we've done is increase the population of pathogens in those fields for next year," said Dorrance. "So the next thing growers need to do is to rotate their crops. Wheat is an excellent crop to put in those soybean fields. It helps to change the flora and reduces the population of soybean cyst nematode, as well as prevents the rapid increase of Phytophthora."

For those growers who are unable to get wheat in the ground, planting corn or alfalfa makes a good substitute.

The corn crop is also faring well, according to Ohio State agronomist Peter Thomison. "With the environmental conditions we've had, the corn is turning out to be better than we had expected," he said.

The crop continues to be about a week behind in development due to late planting and a shallow root system, but some of the major issues concerning agronomists have yet to become widespread problems.

"Maturity is one issue we are concerned about because of the fairly cool growing season. The crop has not accumulated as many heat units as we would have liked it to," said Thomison. "But the crop is showing what some of Ohio State's research has supported: that corn plants when planted on late dates can accommodate a shorter growing season by maturing with fewer heat units."

Another issue is how fast the corn will dry down due to the late-season rains and continued soggy soils. "Surprisingly, a lot of the cornfields planted later than normal and wetter than normal have been drying down faster than expected," said Thomison.

But he urged growers to harvest corn as quickly as possible to avoid any problems with stalk quality.

"A lot of fields are standing well, but we know there is stalk rot in these fields because of the rains we had during the growing season. If you pinch the lower nodes some stalks will collapse very easily," said Thomison. "It won't take much for heavy winds or heavy rains to blow the stalks over, so we are encouraging growers to get out there as soon as possible and earmark those fields which they think they may have problems with."

Northern corn leaf blight, anthracnose stalk rot and top dieback are just some diseases that have predisposed the corn crop to stalk quality problems.

The early frost may also have impacted late-planted corn, said Thomison. The extent of the injury to the corn plants is still not known and how well the crop will yield because of the damage remains a wildcard.

Custom Operators Database Expanded To Cover Five States

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — A website that connects agricultural and dairy producers with custom operators in Pennsylvania has been expanded to include information on service providers in four more states.

The Custom Operators Database (http://cod.aers.psu.edu) now features details on services offered by custom operators in New York, Vermont, Ohio, and Maryland, in addition to Pennsylvania.

The Custom Operators Database was developed by Sarah Roth, extension associate in farm business management with Dairy Alliance, a Penn State Cooperative Extension initiative. The database allows farmers to search for custom agricultural operators who offer the specific services they need. Custom operators from Pennsylvania, New York, Vermont, Ohio, and Maryland can now register their business information with the database to let producers know what is available.

"Farmers who have thought of hiring a custom operator but don't know anyone can use the site as a search tool," Roth explained. "For custom operators, this is another place to market their information before potential new clients."

The database allows searches by county among nine categories of animal services, including dry-transition cow housing and three sub-categories of heifer raising, each based on growth stages. Searches can also be conducted under nine categories of crop services, including harvesting, grinding/shredding, and wrapping round bales, and seven other services, among them brush hogging, fencing, and skid loading.

For more information about the Custom Operators Database, contact Sarah Roth by phone at (814) 863-8645 or by e-mail at sarahroth@psu.edu.

Horse Pasture Management Seminar Scheduled

YORK (York Co.) — A Horse Pasture Management educational meeting is scheduled for Dec. 1 at the York County 4-H Center, Stoverstown Road near Bair from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

The seminar is for pleasure horse owners and horse boarders who want to learn the basic management skills required to become their own horse pasture specialists.

This is the first time in recent memory that Penn State Cooperative Extension in York County has offered a horse pasture management program.

Mark Goodson, extension agronomy agent in York County, is initiating this educational outreach effort because of demand in the community. "There are more horses than dairy cows in York County," reports Goodson. "Many owners of pleasure horses have little knowledge or background in pasture basics. This meeting will teach them where to find quality educational materials."

Shannon Brady, Equine Nutritionist and Extension Educator, is working with Goodson on this program. "Horse pasture management is an integral part of 'horse keeping.' Proper management of pastures can provide adequate nutrition for horses throughout the year and can also decrease feeding costs."

To register for the seminars, contact Lisa or Tina at (717) 840-7408. A $3 cover charge will be collected to cover light refreshments and handouts. For more information, contact Mark Goodson, Penn State Cooperative Extension Agent in York County at (717) 840-7408.

Middleburg Auction Hosts Calf Sale

MIDDLEBURG (Snyder Co.) — Middleburg Livestock Auction conducted its first annual LMA-Vaccinated and Certified Calf (LMA-VACC) program sale Saturday, Nov. 8.

The kickoff of the program at Middleburg, the first of its kind for livestock producers in the area, was a test of the response buyers and sellers alike would have to market-oriented preconditioning programs.

Bill Weist, general manager of Middleburg Livestock Auction said he was pleased with the success of the sale. "The program is still new; the numbers sold were few, but consignors were pleased with the prices and attendance by interested buyers was astounding." "We could have successfully sold many more of the LMA-VACC calves."

LMA-VACC is a national calf vaccination, preconditioning and preventive health program that was created by members of the Livestock Marketing Association (LMA).

She has participated in the quiz bowl contest at the National Junior Angus Show, and attended a regional leadership conference. She is historian of the Maryland Junior Angus Association and has been a member of the National Junior Angus Association since 1991.

these are just a few of the many proposed changes on the table for Pennsylvania's Nutrient Management Act (Act 6).

The revisions for Act 6 are coming close to a final draft ready for public review. This is Pennsylvania's opportunity to review the proposed changes and submit their thoughts on the proposals as this law revision heads toward final approval and implementation in late 2004.

"We're looking at regulations changes, one, because our law requires that in five years we had to relook at our regulations and see if we were going the right way. Secondly, we have had six years of experience with the program and people challenging what the commission has done," said Doug Goodlander of the State Conservation Commission (SCC), which administers the state's nutirent management program.

For the commission, the new program guidelines continue to represent a balance between public concerns and keeping agriculture profitable, while avoiding regulations that could negatively impact the industry.

"The commission continues to be in a balance of trying to address all these issues without shutting the industry down," said Goodlander. "It's a real balance — this is the next attempt at that balance."

The proposals have been approved by the commission and are being prepared for review by the State Attorney General's Office with an estimated target date for public review in January

Dairy Advocacy & Resource Team Meets

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Dairy industry representatives from southeastern Pennsylvania met Sept. 11 to form the Dairy Advocacy & Resource Team (DART).

DART is a project of the Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholders to bring together the sales and service personnel working in the dairy industry. The groups' close ties with producers will aid in delivering a positive message about the Pennsylvania dairy industry and encourage participation in the many educational programs available. The goals are increased production per cow and greater profitability for producers.

Over 60 professionals from the sales and service sectors of the dairy industry attended the meeting.

"We thought that the best way to encourage producers to adopt new technology and business methods was to have this influential group take the message to them directly. It is more than encouraging to see this many people so interested in the growth and viability of our Pennsylvania dairy industry," Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholders President Gary Heckman said.

Those in attendance identified the following as issues that should be addressed by the team: milk quality, forage quality, "real world" expansion process and management, labor issues, business succession, accounting and records, business decision-making, risk management, and community and public relations.

The group also questioned how to package educational information and decided that each program must have a specific target audience.

Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture Dennis Wolff and Penn State Dairy Alliance's Bradley Hilty spoke to the group about the concept of the Dairy Advocacy & Resource Team and why it is needed in the state. Heckman and Alan Bair, director of dairy industry relations for Penn State, also spoke to the group representing the Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholders.

"Strength in dairy is important to all segments of the dairy industry from producers to processors and consuming public. We need strong and profitable dairy farms to keep the infrastructure and to encourage the next generation of producers in Pennsylvania," Wolff said.

The concept of DART is to organize local "chapters" made up of sales and service personnel working together to get valid information to producers and to encourage those producers to remain progressive in their businesses. 'We would like to get this group started and then move on to another region of Pennsylvania. It is our hope that soon there will be DART chapters throughout the state," Heckman said.

Bair presented the industry professionals with several tools available for use in assisting and educating producers. Milk Production Records for Management Control charts allow producers to record production per cow each day to track those management changes that influence milk production the most. The charts are available through the Dairy Alliance office at (888) 373-7232 or HYPERLINK "mailto:mmoyer@psu.edu" mmoyer@psu.edu . The Dairy Development web site (HYPERLINK "http://dairydevelopment.psu.edu" http://dairydevelopment.psu.edu) lists consultants producers can contact for help with any aspect of milk production. The Dairy Alliance calendar (at HYPERLINK "http://dairyalliance.psu.edu" http://dairyalliance.psu.edu) shows producers what educational events are going on around the state. Industry professionals should also consult this calendar before scheduling programs to avoid date conflicts with other meetings.

According to Heckman, each DART chapter will have volunteer "leaders." Volunteers from last week's meeting include Suzanne Demeester, Elanco Animal Health; Jim Ferguson, University of Pennsylvania; Dan Gard, Monsanto Dairy Business; Beth Grove, Penn State Cooperative Extension; Tim Horn, Pennfield Feeds; Dennis Milhoan, Lancaster Dairy Farm Automation; Scott Owens, AgChoice Farm Credit; Tom Oyler, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture; Brian Reed, Ag Veterinary Associates; Glenn Shirk, Shirk's Dairy Sense; Andy Terrell, MidAtlantic Farm Credit; and John Williamson, TeamAg.

Agriculture Secretary Announces Reappointment Of Dairy Farmer To Conservation Commission

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — State Secretary of Agriculture Dennis C Wolff this week announced that a Clearfield County dairy farmer has been reappointed to the 11-member State Conservation Commission (SCC).

Wolff said dairy farmer Ross Orner of Rockton was recently confirmed by the state Senate to another 4-year term on the SCC. Wolff said Orner has been a valued member of the Commission.

First appointed to the SCC in 1994, Orner is a farmer-representative on the SCC. He operates a 525-acre (owned and rented) dairy operation with his brother Dave, cousin Frank, and uncle Russ. Together, the three families milk about 100 head of Holstein and registered Guernsey dairy cattle, and keep about 85 replacement animals. They raise about 178 acres of corn, 170 acres of alfalfa- grass hay, 30 acres of grass hay, and use 75 acres for rotational grazing and pasture. Another 100 acres of forest is managed primarily for hardwood production.

The Orners also operate a unique worm-based composting system (vermi-composting), utilizing two flow-through red worm beds. The compost and byproducts are marketed commercially.

Orner first was appointed to the Clearfield County Conservation district as an associate director in 1984, and then in 1988 was appointed as a district director. He served as chairman of the Clearfield County Conservation District from 1991 until 2002, when he stepped down to reassume a position as an associate district director.

Lancaster Farming is responding to misinformation supplied about a story that appeared on pages A34-35 of the Nov. 8 issue.

According to David Dennis, Arrowhead Springs assistant manager, one of the principle owners is Edmund, not Edward. Second, Arrowhead Springs runs a fee-fishing operation, not a free-fishing operation. Third, the Pennsylvania Game Commission has had nothing to do with the local co-op. That co-op is spearheaded by Steve Homyack, a dentist in Denver and resident and landowner on the South/Texter Mountain.

Lancaster Farming relies heavily on the accuracy of reports supplied to the newspaper.

Comment Period Allows Farmers A Voice In Nutrient Management Law

2004, according to Goodlander.

For farmers, this public review process will give them the opportunity to review the proposed changes and share their thoughts on how the regulations will work on the farm.

To help farmers understand the changes, the SCC and Penn State Cooperative Extension will be on hand to assist farmers.

"The commission staff is available to any group who wants us to come out and talk about the changes," said Goodlander. "We will be anywhere, any time, if somebody wants us there to talk about what we are proposing. At this proposal stage, we would be glad to talk to any group, so they could constructively comment on it."

The SCC is also planning to conduct several public hearings and meetings. The times for these meetings has not been established.

Alyssa Dodd of Penn State Cooperative Extension said cooperative extension is preparing to help farmers.

Penn State plans to have an easy-to-understand publication about the major changes under the Act 6 and how to submit comments for review.

Dodd stresses that farmers need to take the time to submit their comments on the changes.

"The regulations do not change very often. So, there is quite a long period between when people can comment and really shape environmental policies that are affecting agriculture," said Dodd. "It's an opportunity for people to voice their opinion of their knowledge about the subject that has not been herd by policy makers. Ultimately, they can have an impact on regulations in final form."

"This is their industry," said Goodlander on why farmers need to comment. "It's (Act 6) the core base of what Pennsylvania will use for years in whether or not farmers are properly managing nutrients, not just from the nutrient management act program. DEP (Department of Environmental Protection) uses the same nutrient management plan as a base for number of their permits, such as CAFO permits."

Goodlander also said Act 6, when revised, will serve as a reference in USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service (USDA-NRCS) programs.

Goodlander said farmer input is needed to help the commission see if the proposed regulations are "realistic and reasonable" for agriculture. Non-agriculture citizens groups also will be looking at the regulations.

"I would say to the industry, even if they would support what we are doing in these areas — that even if they think that this is the right way to do this — they should provide us that comment, Goodlander said."Because we might be receiving a comment from general citizens from the state that we are taking the wrong stance on this and we should do it differently.

"We need to hear what the industry really feels," said Goodlander.

Luke Brubaker, a farmer from Mount Joy, believes farmers have many reasons to look at the regulations. "Don't let anything happen without being aware of what's happening," he said.

"If they (farmers) don't look at it, they might get something that somebody has made that does not feel the pulse of the farm," said Brubaker. "If (the farmer) is not aware to make comments during the commenting period, he could get something that is very difficult to deal with."

To summarize why farmers need to comment, Kevin Seibert of the Lancaster County Conservation District said simply, "If he (the farmer) doesn't, no one else will."

Lancaster County Weekly Cattle

New Holland, Pa.
Report Supplied By USDA
Friday, Nov. 21, 2003

	CATTLE	CALVES
THIS WEEK	2772	2019
LAST WEEK	2717	1949
LAST YEAR	2795	1734

This week in Lancaster County, slaughter steers sold 1 00-3.00 lower, with sales as much as 5 00 lower in Vintage, with the bulk of the Tuesday supply weighing up full It's beginning to sound like a broken record as one describes the market picture in Lancaster County You would have to be living under a rock right now to not know that finished prices are outstanding (over 100 00 for high Select grades and better), the quality of the cattle is lower than it usually is (due to most producers cleaning their supplies out as the market got higher), and that demand doesn't seem to be wavering too much as receipts are light. Kosher buyers are still on the hunt for the long-feds, and most Northeast packers would rather pay in the upper-60's for Premium White cows than continue to pay the big money for slaughter steers. With that said, Thanksgiving is only a week away, and grocers have been in full turkey promotion mode for the past month Usually, there will be a slight dip in the market as we gather around the butterballs, but this year consumer demand for red meat has been excellent Also, Christmas is right around the corner, when most families prefer a prime rib. There were a few direct cattle traded in Nebraska on Thursday, from mostly 98.00-99.00, which is 1.00-2 00 lower However, marketing in the midwestern states does remain light, as the amount of true finished cattle is low. Slaughter Holstein steers and slaughter heifer receipts were light this week in the County. Not only were they light, but the few that were available were lower quality. Slaughter cows sold steady to 2 00 lower through mid-week, although all losses were recouped by weeks end as prices were 1.00- 3.00 higher There has been an outstanding supply of Breaking and Premium White cows over the past few months in New Holland on Thursday, with packers consuming them without hesitation. Slaughter bulls sold steady early in the week, and trended higher late in the week as cow prices were higher. The cattle supply this week in Lancaster County included 675 slaughter steers, 134 slaughter heifers, 1156 slaughter cows, 124 slaughter bulls, and 683 head of feeder cattle.

Note: The New Holland Sales Stables will be closed on Thursday November the 27th in observance of the Thanksgiving holiday. A regular sale will be held on Friday the 28th at the regular time. This report will not be released until Friday November the 28th.

High yielding Choice 1-2 1265-1450 lbs 109.00-110 50 includes some Charolais- crosses. High Select and low Choice 2-3 1155-1490 lbs 96.25-103.00, mostly 99 00-101.00, full 94.00-99.50. PDA Beef Bull Testing Program Begins

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (PDA) has announced the start of the 2003-2004 Pennsylvania Performance Bull Testing program at the Samuel E. Hayes Jr. Livestock Evaluation Center.

Producers from Pennsylvania and surrounding states have consigned 131 beef bulls to participate in the first bull test in Pennsylvania's new livestock testing facility. The bulls will complete a 112-day growth trial to evaluate rate of gain during the test. Following the test, these animals will be scanned by ultrasound for loin-eye and fat thickness, and the bulls will undergo a comprehensive breeding soundness exam.

The top bulls from the test will be offered in Pennsylvania's 31st Performance Tested Bull Sale on Friday, March 26, 2004 at the Livestock Evaluation Center. The information from this test will enable producers to identify bulls to improve their herd, their profits, and ultimately improve the quality and consistency of the products to the consumer.

Eight different beef breeds are represented at the facility this year, including 75 Angus, 33 Simmentals, eight Charolais, seven Herefords, four Red Angus, two Shorthorns, one Maine Anjou, and one Belgian Blue Simmental Crossbred.

"Through the efforts of our staff and our partners in the livestock industry, we are able to supply consumers with high-quality meat products. The annual bull test helps makes this possible," said Dennis Wolff, Pennsylvania secretary of agriculture.

For more information about bull testing or other Pennsylvania Performance Testing Programs at the Livestock Evaluation Center, please contact Glenn Eberly, director, at (814) 238-2527 or email to HYPERLINK "mailto:geberly@state.pa.us" geberly@state.pa.us.

National Grazing Conference Set For Nashville

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — The second national conference on grazing lands is set for Dec. 7-10 in Nashville, Tennessee.

Hosted by the Grazing Lands Conservation Initiative, the conference is designed to provide a forum for exchange of information and to increase public awareness of the economic and environmental benefits of grazing lands.

Government and research leaders scheduled to participate in the conference include U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Ann Veneman; Bruce Knight, chief of the USDA's Natural Resources Conservation Service; Dale Bosworth, U.S. Forest Service chief; Kathleen Clarke, director of the Bureau of Land Management; Colien Hefferan, Cooperative States Research Education and Extension Service administrator; and Ed Knipling, director of the Agricultural Research Service.

The conference format includes more than 200 presentations about grazing management from a variety of sources, including farmers, ranchers, and representatives of several universities and agricultural agencies.

Presentations will focus on four categories: building partnerships between agricultural, grazing and urban communities; successful cutting-edge management technologies for grazing practices; economic and public policy implications of grazing; and optimizing grazing land health for environmental and social benefits.

For registration information, visit www.glci.org, and click on the "grazing conference" link.

Food Industry Alerted About New Bioterrorism Act Regulations

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Agriculture Secretary Dennis C Wolff last week reminded food-industry executives to follow new regulations created by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) as part of the 2002 Public Health Security and Bioterrorism Preparedness and Response Act.

"To ensure that our nation's food supply is secure, it is essential for those involved in the food supply chain to understand the implications involved with the new bioterrorism regulations," Secretary Wolff said.

Under the new regulations, all domestic and foreign food facilities that manufacture, process, pack or hold food for human or animal consumption in the U.S. are required to register with the FDA. Beginning Dec. 12, the FDA will also require advance notice of any shipment of human or animal food imported or offered for import.

Food facilities affected by this change will be able to access the regulations and register online by Dec. 12 at www.fda.gov. To register via mail or fax, call the FDA Industry Systems Help Desk at (800) 216-7331.

Saint Joseph's University Center for Food Marketing is offering Bioterrorism Regulations Educational Seminars. For additional information, contact Patty Smith, Center for Food Marketing, Saint Joseph's University, at (610) 660-1623 or pasmith@sju.edu.

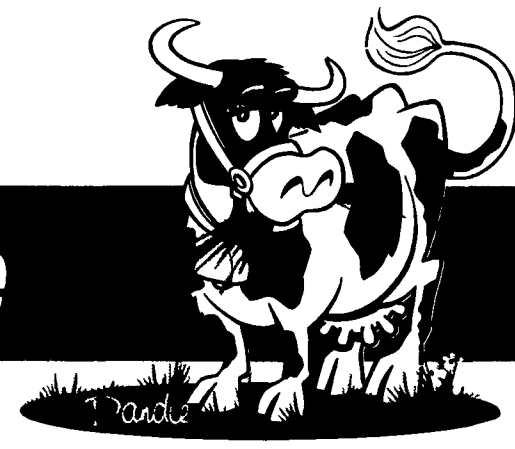
Higher Digestibility & Standability

MC 615 Corn Silage



Stands Above the Rest for Standability & Digestibility!

Masters Choice 615

A 115 day hybrid- Makes a sweet smelling, nutrient dense silage with high grain content, and excellent digestibility. Plant health is also excellent. Reports of 2002 and 2003 performance have been excellent. Comments made by farmers include: excellent yields, very few broken stalks, even after tropical storm Isabel went through, very high levels of sugar (typically 4 to 6%), and great packing characteristics.

Note: In extreme wind, leaves were shredded, and stalks blown over, but very few stalks were broken. MC 615 has a dense, but shorter stalk - usually shorter than most silage hybrids.

The secret to Masters Choice standability and great digestibility is less lignin, but much more digestible cellulose fiber. MC 615 and its short season half sister MC 520Q have thick, dense stalks that are not only nutritious, but also yield outstanding for a corn of average height.

Additional Masters Choice Hybrids with Excellent Standability

MC 605Q - 114 days. A high stress performer with some natural tolerance to corn borer. It has moderately soft kernels at silo filling time. Widely adapted to different soil types and planting populations. Will produce more than one ear if conditions are good. Great standability. If planted below 18,000, it usually produces 2 ears per stalk.

MC 564 - 112 days. New for 2004. A high yielding grain variety. Excellent plant health and standability. Also easy to hand shuck and shell.

MC 530 - 105 days. A high stress performer with high sugars. It tassels and pollinates about 5 days earlier than similar maturity hybrids. Excellent standability.

MC 520Q - 102 days. Similar to 615, but shorter season. In addition to all the positive traits of MC 615, it also has the added benefit of some natural tolerance to corn borer.

Thanksgiving Day's Beginnings

ASHLEY BIRD
Centre Co. Dairy Princess

PLEASANT GAP (Centre Co.) — With fall in full swing many families are gearing up to the start of several holidays. At my house we usually have the traditional Tranksgiving meal. But do you know the facts about the real first Thanksgiving?

We all know that the pilgrims sailed to this country on the Mayflower and set ground at Plymouth Rock in 1620. Landing in the middle of December, their first year saw the loss of many lives. After having what seemed like a plentiful harvest the next fall the pilgrims decided to celebrate with a feast including the Indians who had helped them survive the first year. The feast was more a traditional English harvest festival than a true "thanksgiving" observance. It lasted three days.

Governor William Bradford sent "four men fowling" after wild ducks and geese. It is not certain that wild turkey was part of their feast. However, it is certain that they had venison. The term "turkey" was used by the Pilgrims to mean any sort of wild fowl.

Another staple at almost every Thanksgiving table is pumpkin pie. But it is unlikely that the first feast included that treat. The supply of flour had been long diminished, so there was no bread or pastries of any kind. They did however eat boiled pumpkin and they produced their own kind of fried bread from their corn crop. There was also no milk, cider, potatoes, or butter. There were no domestic cattle for dairy then. However, the true first feast did include fish, berries, watercress, lobster, dried fruit, clams, venison, and plums.

For many years Thanksgiving was held at other various times of the year or not at all. It wasn't until George Washington proclaimed a National Day of Thanksgiving in 1789, that there was an official holiday. However this opposed by many and even

On Being a Farm Wife

(and other hazards)

Joyce Bupp

Hey. You, there.

Yeah, you. I can read your mind, and let me tell you, I don't like what I see. I see plans. Big plans. Plans that scare me.

What plans of yours do I see? Well, I see a big table, with lots of people sitting around it. There are plenty of smiles and people talking and having a good time. The table is piled full of, let's see, things like bowls of white mashed potatoes and orange yams and red cranberry sauce and brown gravy and green beans and ... oh no.

I was afraid of that.

Right there in the middle. The one on the big platter, all stuffed and steaming and kind of golden brown. He's an old friend of mine. I'd recognize him anywhere, even without his feathers.

Looks like he finally made it big.

He always did like to be the center of attention, even when we were just fluffy little balls snuggling under the lights at the hatchery. He always bragged about pecking his way out of his eggshell, ahead of all the rest of us.

I lost track of him after we got sent out in different shipments. But I've heard tales about how he gobbled along endlessly to the hens about how much plumper he was, puffing out his breast and fluffing those tail feathers. And how he didn't have to work for a living, just laze around all day and get fat.

Looks like it worked.

Envy? Nah, I didn't envy him.

Hey, look at me. I'm of native wild turkey blood. We're not couch potatoes. We're famed for our keen eyesight, our caginess, and our street smarts. We're also much prettier than those plain, boring, white birds. Our feathers are a beautiful blend of brown and black and shimmer with green and gold luminescence in the sunshine.

When I landed on this farm, I wasn't sure what to expect. But after I got acquainted with those two hens they penned me with, I sort of forgot about all my guy buddies back at the turkey breeding farm. And I haven't thought about old pudgy, there on the table, for a long time.

These girls are my family now. We spend most of our time together, along with those two goofy guinea birds. Every day we all hang out together, checking the barn floors for grain, picking bugs and weed seeds out of the garden, making our rounds of the meadow, bullying those pesky kittens out of our way. And we always scratch around a little under the bird feeder as we're passing by, for a little fast food sunflower seeds.

Our humans here, they thought maybe we would take to the woods, establish a little flock. Hey, there are predators out there. I spotted that fox that runs the fields after dark the very first night I was here. She made it a regular habit to stalk around our pen, even though we had a high roosting perch in the trees. Pretty unnerving. That fox has her eye on us, that's for sure. Good thing she can't fly since we found the rafters in the old bank barn. Guess she'll have to settle for catching mice.

Anyway, we like sleeping with a barn roof over our head now. Waking up with wet feathers in the morning is nasty.

I do keep watch for those chicken hawks while we're out roaming the meadow. You can't be too careful, you know. Maybe they are better fliers than I am, but could flog the feathers off any of them if they ever get too close.

Well, I can see you aren't going to change your plans about having dinner with my old friend. Remember to count your blessings and all that food you have piled there on the table in your plans.

Let me tell you, the hens and I are thankful, too. We're thankful that you people have tons of frozen turkeys to pick from at the markets.

We're even more thankful that they have one of them here in the farm refrigerator and won't be thinking about a native turkey for dinner.

And give some thought to having a ham or roast beef for your next feast.

Have A Healthy Smile!

An apple a day keeps the doctor away and maybe the dentist as well. What you choose to eat and drink affects your body, mind, and teeth.

Selecting healthy foods and beverages can help prevent dental caries, along with proper dental hygiene and visiting a dentist regularly. Dental caries is especially prevalent in our nation's pre-school and school-aged children, with 80 percent of them having early childhood caries or cavities.

People are susceptible to cavities for many reasons, but reviewing feeding and eating practices may provide a way for people to make changes that can help prevent or delay the onset of cavities. Recommended infant and child feeding practices and general guidelines for healthful eating apply to your teeth as well.

Pregnant women should get enough nutritious food to ensure proper development of baby's teeth. Put only breast milk, formula, or milk in baby's bottle and do not leave the bottle in the baby's mouth while napping or sleeping. (no juices, sweetened drinks, or cereal in the bottle).

Introduce solid food to baby at around six months of age, not before or after. Follow the order of cereals, vegetables, fruits, and then meats.

Follow regular meal patterns and avoid extended periods of time without any food at all.

Consume less caffeinated and sugary beverages, such as soda pop.

Limit the number of times a day you eat or drink foods that have a high level of refined sugar, such as highly processed starchy snacks, sweetened drinks, and sugary snacks.

Reduce the amount of snacks between meals, especially foods that are sticky and sweet like candy, cake, potato chips, pies, corn chips, cookies, soda pop, ice cream, some crackers, jams and jellies, cocoa, raisins and other dried fruits.

Choose foods that contain protein, calcium, and other healthful nutrients, such as dairy products, fruits, and vegetables.

Other good snack ideas can be popcorn, cheese, lunch meats, water, milk, low sugar yogurt, low sugar cereal, bagels, pizza, eggs, some crackers, and peanut butter on bread (these also provide healthful vitamins and minerals and are healthy smile snacks).

Refined sugar, sugar that is not a natural part of the food or sugar that is manufactured, is the sugar to monitor. If you look at the ingredient list on the food package and see words such as corn syrup, honey, simple syrup, or molasses, that product contains refined sugar. Some foods like fruits and milk, have natural sugars and needn't be avoided.

Every time you eat or drink something with a high level of refined sugar, the bacteria in your mouth use that sugar as a food. After the bacteria eat the sugar, they leave an acid behind. This acid stays on your teeth for about 20 minutes and can harm the covering of your teeth. This is why the frequency of eating and drinking high sugar snacks is dangerous, because this process occurs each time we eat or drink.

It is worse to have a few cans of sodas at different times throughout the day, then having it just once, at one time. If you choose to have a sugary snack or drink on occasion, have them after eating a well balanced meal.

Here's to happy, healthy smiles!

Before There's Thanksgiving Turkey, You Must Have An Egg

GAY BROWNLEE
Virginnia Correspondent

MT. CRAWFORD, Va. — At Sonny Meyerhoeffers Double M Farm, some 10,000 turkey breeder hens are kept.

That's because if you want a turkey at Thanksgiving or any other time, first you start with a turkey egg.

The breeder hens lay the eggs that hatch poults at a nursery. The nursery then distributes the young birds to turkey growers who manage their growth, until the turkeys have arrived at the stage of maturity where they are shipped to the market.

"Breeder hens are at the forefront of everything," said Meyerhoeffer.

Every year, Meyerhoeffers breeder hens produce some 1.4 million eggs for a hatchery operated by the Pilgrims Pride organization.

Beginning at 3:45 a.m. and going until 5:30 p.m., the Double M staffers work on shifts that vary, seven days a week. The eggs daily are collected 13 times.

The precious eggs are gathered from 5 a.m. to 2 p.m. They are taken to the egg room, where automatic washing and sanitizing takes place. In the drying process, excess water is evaporated by a fan. The eggs are placed in a cool place immediately thereafter.

"You get them in, wash them, and cool them off," Meyerhoeffer said, "That's what keeps them from incubating."

In conjunction with a computer clock, some 80 percent of the birds lay eggs on nests that are operated automatically. Air pushes the big girl off the nest and the egg deposit is gathered. At the nests, remaining manual labor is necessary to persuade the turkey to briefly vacate the roost, because in a snug environment the incubation process can start before it should.

On the lawn of their Mount Crawford home, Sonny Meyerhoeffer, Double M Farms, stands with his wife, Marie and their children who are still at home — Benjamin, 13 and Oriana, 11. The dogs are Lady, a golden retriever and Junior, a border collie still in the puppy stage. Double M Farm produces breeder hen eggs. Upon being hatched, the poults grow into chubby birds, especially popular for Thanksgiving feasts.
Photos by Gay Brownlee, Virginia Correspondent

The Double M crews experience has developed to a fine skill — mainly sight and touch. The workers have handled so many eggs it is possible for them to identify a reject in a hurry.

Double-yokers, for instance, all-white instead of spotted Shells, eggs with dirt, cracked or soft shells, and eggs that are too small — these will be infertile.

"Its all done by eyesight," said Meyerhoeffer.

Fertile eggs represent money. Its imperative that no defective specimens reach the hatchery. There is a limit on how many rejects are allowable per thousand eggs. If the number goes higher, there will be a penalty.

A big shift in the environment has occurred in the years since Meyerhoeffer's dad also raised breeder hens. In todays controlled atmosphere, the birds no longer roam the range as they were permitted to in days gone by.

In regard to laying her eggs, light plays a critical role in the life of the breeder hen. The amount of light around the bird is closely monitored in terms of hours of exposure.

Meyerhoeffer estimates his grandfather purchased the farm in 1939. He is the third generation on the land, and his kids, the fourth generation.

Oriana exhibits a few things that remind her of Thanksgiving — a Pocahontas doll that usually displayed at the living room window, her own drawing of the first Thanksgiving, and the turkey candy dish of golden glass thats always filled with goodies.

Benjamin, 13 and Oriana, 11 are the only children living at home. Their mother, Marie Meyerhoeffer, home schools them.

Thanksgiving Day is always special to the Meyerhoeffers. Marie said even though you give thanks all year long, Thanksgiving is a special time to be thankful for blessings, especially for health and freedom.

Its also a day of deer hunting for Benjamin and his granddad.

"If theres any football on (television), we watch," Benjamin said. His team would be the Washington Redskins.

As far as the meal, the mashed potatoes and gravy are the best part for him, plus pumpkin pie, but Benjamin said it can't be too sweet.

"I'm thankful for food and family and that we are in a free nation," said the teen-ager.

Oriana loves Thanksgiving Day for a host of reasons, but primarily, "because my whole family is together and we have good food," she said.

Last year Oriana did a wonderful colored pencil drawing of the first Thanksgiving. The representation shows a well-dressed Pilgrim and Indian woman, apparently urging guests to join them at the long table with its platters of steaming food.

"I love drawing. I basically draw a picture for every holiday, she said."

This year for a very different experience on the big day itself. The Meyerhoeffers are going to Charlotte, N.C. to assist with Operation Christmas Child. Benjamin and Oriana, meanwhile, will be visiting with their maternal grandparents.

The Meyerhoeffers will be assisting those who check the festive shoe boxes the final time before the Christmas shipments are sent around the world to children who would not otherwise receive presents. Operation Christmas Child was founded by Franklin Graham.

"We will be the last people to see them (gift-filled boxes) before they are shipped," Marie said.

According to trivia statistics found at the National Turkey Federation Website — www.eatturkey.com — an estimated 46 million turkeys were consumed on Thanksgiving Day 2002.

In general, about 95 percent of Americans "gobble" down turkey at Thanksgiving.

Overall in the U.S., 271 million turkeys were grown in 2002.

Marie raves about her mothers homemade stuffing and reports that she and her siblings were taught to wash their hands in order to tear two loaves of white bread into small pieces. The bread cubes dried either on top of the counter or speed dried in the oven.

Following is that recipe (half the original amounts) and two Thanksgiving salads that Marie herself makes.

STUFFING

1 loaf white bread, broken into pieces and set out to dry or speed-dried at a low temperature in the oven.
2 onions, chopped
1 stick of butter, melted
½ of a large bag of Pepperidge Farm Herb Seasoned Stuffing Mix
¾ tablespoon salt
Pepper to taste
Enough water to moisten the batch

In a large bowl, combine all ingredients with the dried bread and toss loosely. Stuff in the turkey cavity and around the outside if necessary. For roasting the bird, follow directions specified on the turkey wrapper.

Note: Chopped celery is optional. You can use sage and chicken broth instead of water.

CARROT SALAD

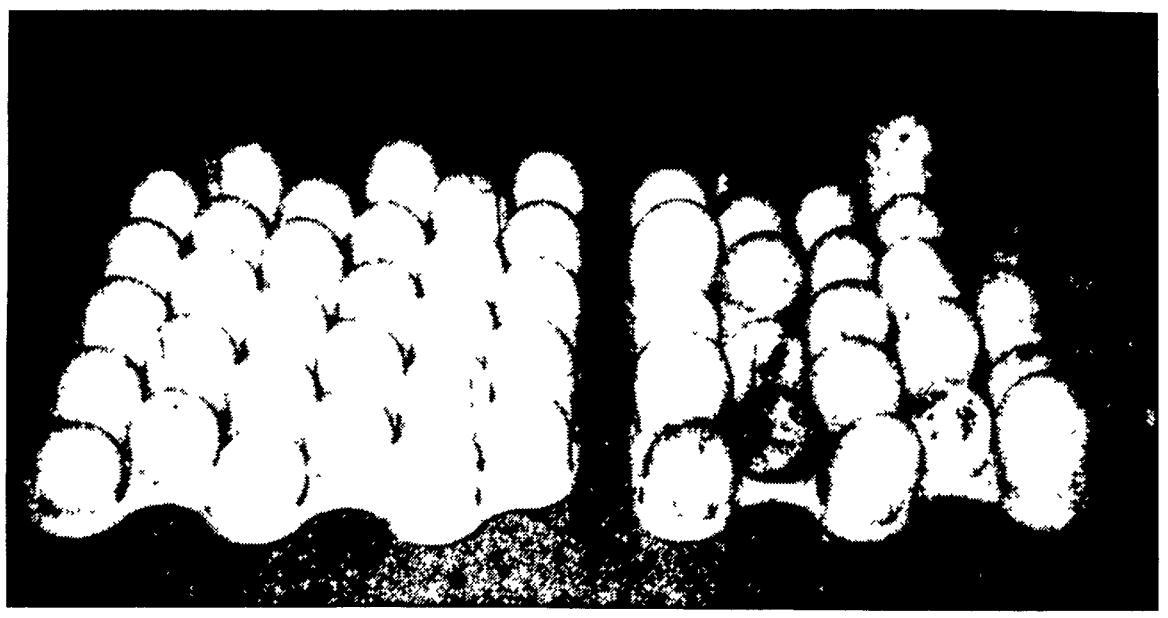
2 pounds carrots cooked tender but not soft
1 medium onion sliced thin
1 green pepper sliced thin
1 can condensed tomato soup
½ cup sugar
½ cup salad oil
⅔ cup vinegar (part lemon juice, if preferred)
1 teaspoon dry mustard

Cook carrots in salt water until tender, drain. Mix other ingredients together and pour over carrots. Store in refrigerator overnight.

CRANBERRY ORANGE RELISH

3 packages fresh cranberries (9 cups)
3 oranges, including peel, but with seeds removed
3 cups sugar
3 cored apples with peel left on
Handful of nuts (optional)

Grind everything to a relish consistency (overgrinding will result in a mixture that is too watery). Chill well and serve.



The acceptable eggs are on the flat at left. They are shipped to the hatchery. Opposite them is a flat rejected for reasons of dirt, double yolks, inferior shells, and small size.

Consuming Thoughts

by

Fay Strickler

Penn State Extension Home Economist for Berks Co.

This week's column is in a question and answer format and includes some of the most frequent questions that consumers ask about turkey preparation and cooking.

Is stuffing a turkey the night before a good time saver?

Some people may think it's a time saver, but it's a unsafe food handling procedure. Harmful bacteria can multiply in the stuffing and cause food poisoning even when the stuffed bird is refrigerated. The cavity of the bird actually insulates the stuffing from the cold temperatures of the refrigerator and acts as an incubator for harmful bacteria. So, always stuff turkey right before it goes in the oven.

The ingredients for the stuffing can be prepared and refrigerated separately the night before. Then mix your stuffing. Stuff the turkey and cook immediately. Another option is to mix and pop the stuffing into the oven in a casserole dish during the last hour or so the turkey is baking.

Is it safe to cook a turkey in a brown grocery bag.

The glue and ink on brown bags were never intended for use as cooking materials and may give off harmful fumes. Also, brown bags are usually made from recycled materials and are not sanitary. To cook your turkey safely in a bag, use a commercial oven bag.

The bags are time savers too, particularly if you're roasting a large bird.

If one turkey takes 3 hours to cook will it take 6 hours to cook two turkeys?

Cooking two turkeys of about the same weight does not double the roasting time. In fact, cooking two takes no longer than if there were only one bird in the oven.

Just make sure there is sufficient oven space for both turkeys so the heat can circulate properly, and check each one separately for doneness. When the birds are done, a meat thermometer, placed in the meatiest part of the thigh, should register 180F. When you poke the turkey with a fork, the juices should run clear.

If you're microwaving turkey, however, cooking time is based on the combined weight of the turkey pieces. It takes longer to microwave several pieces.

Again, use a meat thermometer to determine when the pieces are done. After standing covered outside the microwave for 10 to 15 minutes, turkey breasts should reach 170 F., thighs and drumsticks, 180F.

Is price the best indicator of quality for purchasing a turkey?

All turkeys in the market are young (usually 4 to 6 months of age) and therefore tender. While stores price turkeys low to attract shoppers, that is no indication of quality.

Look for a USDA or state inspection mark that indicates the turkey is safe and wholesome. Personal preference and storage space usually dictate whether you buy fresh or frozen, pre-basted or unbasted.

Pre-basted birds may contain vegetable oil, broth and spices added to give flavor and keep the birds moist. USDA Grade A, the highest quality grade, means a bird is well shaped and free of pinfeathers, cuts and bruises.

LOST STREAM MAP

The STREAM MAP OF PENNSYLVANIA was completed in 1965 after a thirty-year effort by Howard Higbee, a former Penn State Professor

The map is known as the LOST STREAM MAP to some anglers

Professor Higbee succeeded in creating a map of the highest detail possible . a map that shows every stream and lake He painstakingly plotted by hand the location of 45,000 miles of streams onto a 3 by 5 foot map

The map sold extremely well--until it was lost several years later. Incredibly, the printer entrusted with the original drawing and printing plates declared bankruptcy, then carelessly hauled Higbee's 30 years of work to a landfill.

The few remaining dog-eared copies became a prized fisherman's possession. Professor Higbee was offered $400 for one of his last maps And state agencies were forced to keep their copies under lock and key

Experts told Professor Higbee that reprints were impossible, because the maps were printed in non-photographic blue

Then, in 1991, at the age of 91, Howard Higbee's dream came true. Computers made it possible to reprint the map Howard said, "I never thought I'd live to see this day"

Professor Higbee's maps are the first and only highly detailed maps of their kind.

Marble (Apple Blossom) Cake

Mix 2 cups granulated sugar and ¾ cup shortening.

Add 5 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 1½ teaspoon vanilla, ⅔ cup milk, and 3 cups flour. Beat for 2 minutes.

Beat 6 egg whites. Add ½ cup sugar after eggs are beaten, then beat again. Add to batter.

To ½ cup batter add red food coloring and mix.

Melt one square baking chocolate with ¼ teaspoon baking soda. Add to ½ cup of batter and mix.

Swirl batters together and place in 8 to 8½ inch layer pans.

Bake at 350 degrees F for 40-45 minutes.

Marble Spice Cake

White part:

Beat ½ cup shortening with 1 cup granulated sugar.

Add 2 teaspoons baking powder, ¼ teaspoons salt, and 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Beat 2½ cups cake flour, ½ cup milk, and 4 egg whites, stiffly beaten.

Add egg whites to batter and stir in.

Beat 1 cup shortening with 1 cup brown sugar.

Add 4 egg yolks, ½ cup molasses, 1 teaspoon baking soda, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon cinnamon and cloves, ½ teaspoon nutmeg, and 2 cups cake flour. Beat with 1 cup sour milk.

Drop alternate spoonfuls of each batter into large greased tube pan, so as to make a marble effect.

Bake at 350 degrees F for 1 hour.

Creamy cocoa frosting:

3 cups powdered sugar
3 tablespoons cocoa
¼ cup shortening
¼ cup salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ cup strong coffee

ANSWER — Audrey Balogh of Bloomsbury, N.J. provided several recipe answers. For Richard Klickman of Quakertown she sent:

Zucchini Cookies

½ cup margarine, softened
1 cup white sugar
1 egg
1 cup grated zucchini
2 cups all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
½ teaspoon ground cloves
1 cup raisins

In a medium bowl, cream together the margarine and sugar until smooth. Beat in the egg then stir in the zucchini. Combine the flour, baking soda, salt and cinnamon; stir into the zucchini mixture. Mix in raisins. Cover dough and chill for at least 1 hour or overnight.

Preheat oven to 375 degrees F (190 degrees C). Grease cookie sheets. Drop dough by teaspoonfuls onto the prepared cookie sheet. Cookies should be about 2 inches apart.

Bake for 8 to 10 minutes in the preheated oven until set. Allow cookies to cool slightly on the cookie sheets before removing to wire racks to cool completely.

Iced Pumpkin Cookies

2½ cups all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
2 teaspoons ground cinnamon
½ teaspoon ground nutmeg
½ teaspoon ground cloves
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup butter, softened
1½ cups white sugar
1 cup canned pumpkin puree
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
2 cups confectioners' sugar
3 tablespoons milk
1 tablespoon melted butter
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Preheat oven to 350 degrees F. Combine flour, baking powder, baking soda, cinnamon, nutmeg, ground cloves, and salt. Set aside.

In a medium bowl, cream together the ½ cup of butter and white sugar. Add pumpkin, egg, and 1 teaspoon vanilla to butter mixture, and beat until creamy. Mix in dry ingredients. Drop on cookie sheet by tablespoonfuls and flatten slightly.

Bake for 15 to 20 minutes in the preheated oven. Cool cookies, then drizzle glaze with fork.

To make glaze: Combine confectioners' sugar, milk, 1 tablespoon melted butter, and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Add milk as needed, to achieve drizzling consistency.

¾ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 egg white, unbeaten

Canned Venison

Cut deer meat in cubes and pack in clean (sterilized) jars.

Add 1 teaspoon of salt to each jar.

Wipe rim of jar, put on sterilized lid, and tighten by hand. Do not add water to jars.

Have water heating in canner, but don't let it get too hot before adding jars. After all the jars are placed in the canner, make sure the water level comes to the neck of the jars. When the water comes to a boil, begin timing. Boil for about 3 hours.

POW's and MIA's... We Should Never Forget.

Amidst their hardships and tribulations, America's fighting men and women have always taken comfort in their favorite songs of faith. These songs have helped to keep strong their belief in their God, and their love for their country, which has asked of them great sacrifices for the sake of their fellow Americans. To serve these wonderful men and women Cristy Lane worked more than 120 shows in Vietnam during the Vietnam War. It was Cristy's way of keeping faith with the troops, at a time when many Americans were turning their backs on them. As long as she lives, she will never forget the faces of these young men and women. On August 27, 2003 the VFW formally inducted Cristy into the VFW Hall of Fame in San Antonio at their National Convention. And now Cristy Lane is proud to present a special CD of songs of faith to our Veterans of Foreign Wars, many of whom she met in the jungles of Southeast Asia.

These are the most requested songs of faith of all time, including Cristy's #1 country hit from 1980, the timeless classic, "One Day At A Time." These songs have been selected especially for you, America's veterans, who know so well the meaning of faith, and the value of a great song of faith.

God bless and take it one day at a time.

Kids Korner

Wyoming-Lackawanna Dairy Misses, Ag Secretary Create Milk Mustaches

MILL CITY (Wyoming Co.) — When Agriculture Secretary Denn' Wolff visited with the third and fourth grade students at Mill City Elementary School in early November, what a surprise the kids had in store.

Rachel Smarkusky, 10; Brandy Landsiedel, 12; and Brianna Smarkusky, 8 — the 2003-04 Wyoming-Lackawanna Dairy Misses — donned their milk mustaches to celebrate the secretary's visit and to promote milk.

The Dairy Misses had fun showing the students, teachers, and staff how to make their own milk mustaches.

Wolff and Dr. Mee Cee Baker visited with the students as part of the secretary's statewide "Harvest Tour."

Wolff and Baker talked about the importance of the state's dairy industry and showed the students how to make butter.

For your own dairy fun, here are the two recipes used during the visit.

MILK MUSTACHE

1 quart vanilla ice cream

2 cups whole milk.

Place the ice cream in the refrigerator (not freezer) to melt overnight. In a blender combine 2 cups of melted ice cream and 1 cup of milk in a blender slowly until it reaches a constancy of melted ice cream. Pour into a glass, and begin making mustaches.

SHAKE A BUTTER

½ pint of heavy cream at room temperature

1 jar with airtight lid.

Pour the heavy cream into the jar and tighten the lid. Shake until a butter ball forms. Serve with crackers.

got milk?

Agriculture Secretary Dennis Wolff, center, makes a visit to Mill City Elementary School to talk about the dairy industry. To help in the presentation were from left, Brandy Landsiedel, Wyoming-Lackawanna Dairy Miss; Ron Williams, Pennsylvania Agriculture Department regional director; Brianna Smarkusky, Wyoming-Lackawanna Dairy Miss; Dr. Mee Cee Baker; Wolff; Laurie Limtar, principal; Eddie Otts; and Rachel Smarkusky, Wyoming-Lackawanna Dairy Miss.

Agriculture Secretary Dennis Wolff, back center, joins the Wyoming- Lackawanna Dairy Misses and school students in making milk mustaches.

Ida's Notebook

by

Ida Risser

This morning the thermometer said that the outside temperature was 21 degrees. However, our house is a comfortable 70 degrees as I dress for breakfast.

All of this got me to thinking of dressing in the house where I was born. It was a large 10-room house. And, the only heat was a big black stove in the kitchen. So, we learned to dress in a hurry in the bedroom where I and two sisters slept — three in an old red rope bed with a chaff bag for a mattress. We wore long underwear and long brown stockings, held up by garters, to keep warm. A black stove pipe ran through our room to the chimney.

There was another stove in the house and only on Sunday was this parlor stove lit. It had a lot of fancy nickel trim and sat on a metal pad in the living room with the horsehair sofa and chairs. My mother had them recovered one time and I was told that the material had to be shipped from Europe.

The cookstove had a resevoir on the side for warm water. It was used to wash dishes in a dry sink, which still stands in the family room in my present house.

My father many times told us never to pour kerosene on the slow burning fire, but rather dip the corn cobs into a tin of kerosene and add them to a slow fire.

Both wood and coal were burned in the stove depending on the weather. The very first job that I was given was to pick up wood chips to start the fire. And, I remember disliking the job a lot. Now I can simply adjust a thermostat on the wall and get whatever temperature that I want from our fuel oil furnace in the basement.

You ask you answer

This column is for readers who have questions but don't know whom to ask for answers.

"You Ask—You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. When a reader sends in a question, it will be printed in the paper. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed in the paper.

Questions and Answers to this column should be addressed to You Ask—You Answer, Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. Attention: Lou Ann Good.

Or, you may e-mail questions and answers to LGOOD.EPH@LNPNEWS.COM

Please clarify what question you are answering when responding.

Do not send a self-addressed, stamped envelope for a reply. If we receive the answer, we will publish it as soon as possible. Please include your phone number because we sometimes need to contact the person to clarify details. We will not publish your phone number unless you request it. However, if your question requires someone to mail items to you, you must include your address or phone number for publishing.

scoffed at by President Thomas Jefferson. It was Sarah Hale, magazine editor, whose efforts eventually led to what we recognize as Thanksgiving. Ms. Hale wrote many editorials championing her cause in the "Boston Ladies' Magazine," and later in "Godey's Lady's Book."

Finally after all of Hale's obsessing, Thanksgiving became a reality when in 1863, President Lincoln proclaimed the last Thursday in November as a national day of Thanksgiving. It was proclaimed by every president after that and in 1941, Thanksgiving was finally sanctioned by Congress as a legal holiday, as the fourth Thursday in November.

Today, the usual fare consists of turkey, dressing, mashed potatoes, vegetables, hot bread, and pumpkin pie. As the Centre County Dairy Princess I am always on the lookout for new and exciting recipes to use for this traditional day. Please enjoy this different variety of pumpkin pie.

CREAM CHEESE PUMPKIN PIE

8 ounces cream cheese, softened
½ teaspoon vanilla
¼ cup sugar
1 egg

Mix and spread in 9-inch unbaked pie shell.

Combine:
1¼ cups cooked pumpkin
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon each ginger and nutmeg

Blend in:
1 slightly beaten egg
1 cup evaporated milk

Carefully pour fully mixed pumpkin mixture over cheese mixture. Bake at 350 degrees for 65-70 minutes. For an added treat always top with delicious whipped cream.

John Deere Bikes — Not Just Green, By The Way

Dave Everitt holds onto a 1970 John Deere Ladies' Touring Frame 19-inch bike, a rare item, for sale Nov. 28.

Auctioneer John Hess holds onto a John Deere blue — yes, blue — ladies' 19-inch wheel 3-speed from the 1970s.

Dave Everitt holds up the boys' StingRay bike, one of several at an upcoming auction.

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

LEOLA (Lancaster Co.) — Did John Deere actually make bikes?

Yes, believe it or not.

In the late 1960s, early 1970s, a whole spate — about eight different models — were introduced sporting the traditional John Deere green, and also blue, white, and yellow.

John Deere yellow?

John Deere blue?

Indeed — and several of these bikes are going up for sale at a Wolgemuth Auction on Friday, Nov. 28, beginning at 9 a.m. on Maple Avenue in Leola.

Dave Everitt, Everitt Equipment in Ringoes, N.J., brought some of his collection of Deere bikes to the Lancaster Farming office late last week.

The bikes range from a 1970 Ladies' Touring Frame, 19-inch 3-speed to a Boys' StingRay, 20-inch, weighing about 33 pounds.

All are vintage John Deere bikes — in pretty good shape, to boot.

Auctioneer John Hess, Leola, noted that the bikes are in excellent condition, and refuses to put a value on them.

He pointed out the condition of the leather seat on the ladies' bike, and noted it was the "nicest condition of any John Deere bike I've ever seen."

Everitt obtained the ladies' bike from a New York State farm sale about six years ago. The StingRay came from a sale about a year and a half ago.

Another ladies' model, a 19-inch 3-speed, sports John Deere blue — yes, blue, from the early 1970s. The bikes came in standard Deere green and also a blue. The blue Everitt obtained about six years ago from a sale in Pennsylvania.

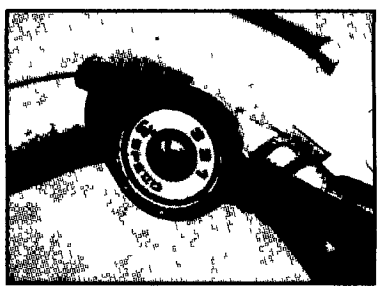
The blue touring frame bikes came out of the same years — the 1960s, noted Everitt.

Everitt also has a vintage 20-inch high, 14-inch frame, 33-pound Boys' StingRay in John Deere yellow. Everitt noted the bikes were acquired years ago. He had a StingRay made by another manufacturer when he was a lot younger. One day, Everitt noticed a friend painting a Deere bike green, using paint left over from a job. He started collecting Deere bikes since then from yard sales, flea markets, private auctions, and other locations.

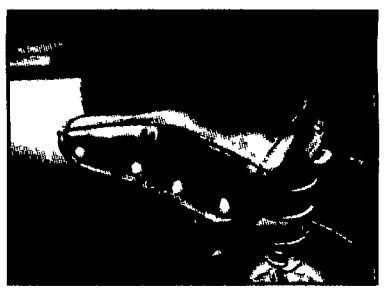
Everitt said he has been "hunting for (the bikes) for about 15-18 years."

Deere made eight different types of bikes, including the ladies' green 3 speed, men's green 3-speed, a ladies' blue 3-speed, a white "unisex" 5-speed model, a white Deere 10-speed, a black Deere mens' racer 10-speed, a boys' Sting Ray, and a girls' Sting Ray. Everitt has all eight, and collects other items, including pedal tractors, full-size antique tractors (he has a John Deere Model B, the fifth one built, Model B1004).

Everitt, who grows about 500 acres of grain near Ringoes, N.J., also cares for horses.



A look at the 3-speed shifter on the right handlebar of the John Deere Ladies' Blue 3-speed.



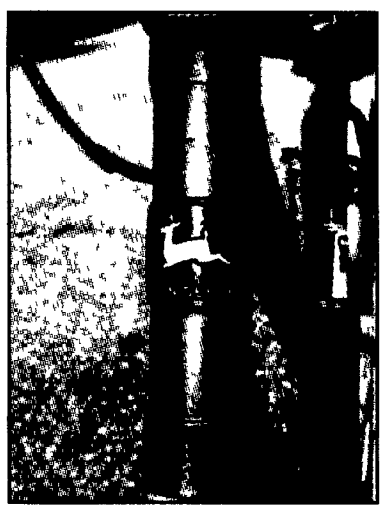
The leather seat on the John Deere Ladies' Touring Frame 19-inch bike has held up well for wear.

All photos by Andy Andrews, editor

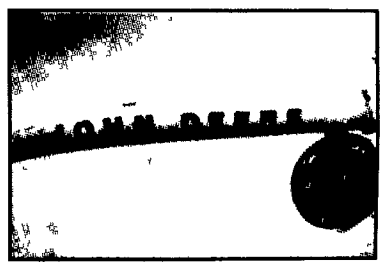
John Hess of John M. Hess Auction Service Inc., noted the bikes could be sold "after 4 p.m. or later," but the sale will go to the late hours.

"It should be a whole evening full of fun," said Everitt.

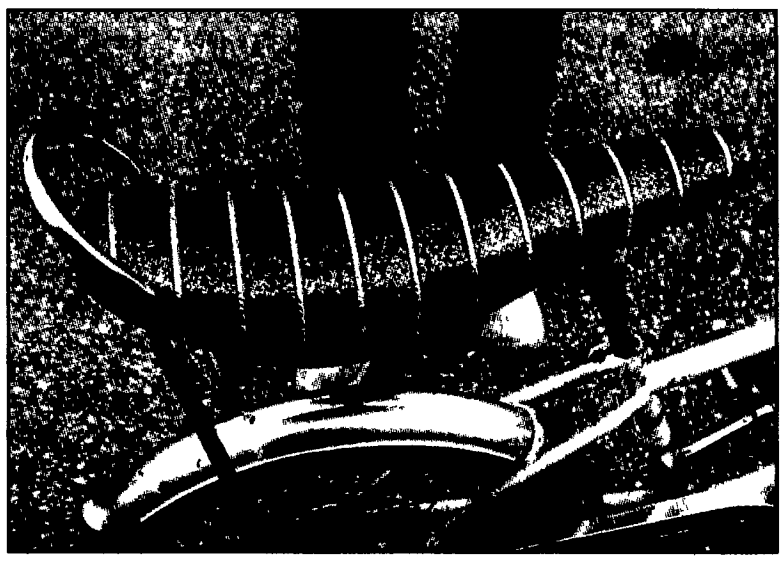
For more information, contact Everitt at (908) 782-5283 or John Hess at (717) 733-8192.



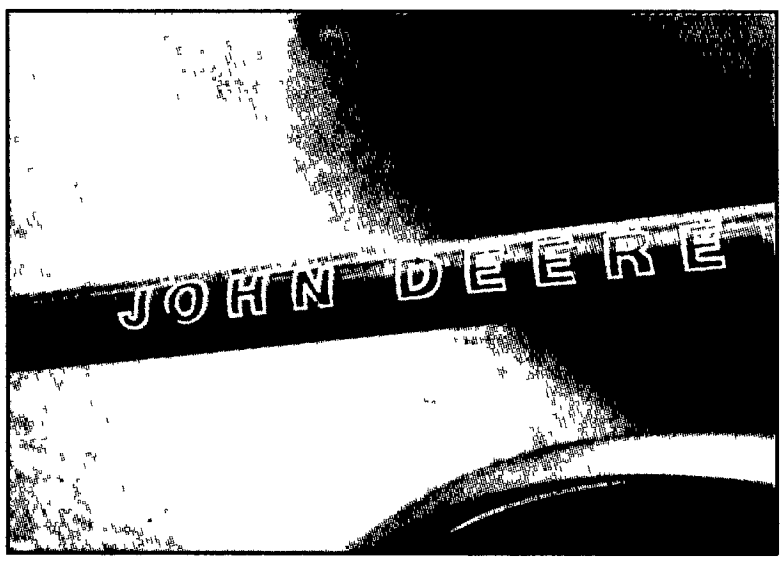
John Deere actually manufactured a blue bike.



John Deere manufactured this 20-inch bike, a StingRay, during those crazy days of the popular type of sporty bikes in 1969-1970. Notice John Deere yellow — yes, yellow.



The 20-inch boys' StingRay type bike seat has minimal wear on the John Deere-manufactured bike.



The Deere logo is clearly a part of the handlebar in the circa-1970 John Deere Ladies' Blue 3-speed bike.

Pricey Steuben Crystal Offers Some Affordable Smalls

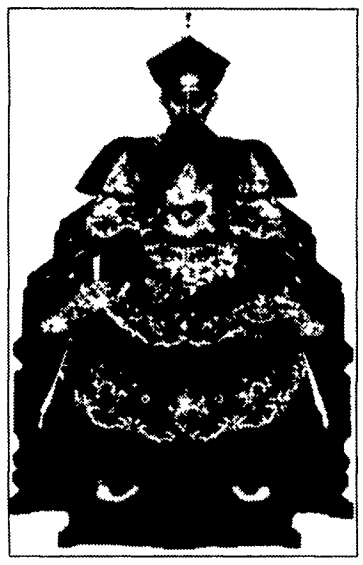
As part of its 100th anniversary celebration Steuben Glass is reissuing many of the sculptures designed from the 1940s to 1980s. This gives a new collecting generation an opportunity to get acquainted with the elegant crystal. Always expensive, there are many small, affordable pieces such as the hand warmers and figurines of animals, fowl, birds and sealife.

There were bargains to be found when many of these pieces came to auction in the 1990s. The people who had collected them in the 1960s and 1970s had moved on to other collecting categories or their estates were selling them off.

Needless to say prices are much higher today than at auction or even in catalogs from the 1970s -1980s. In the 1976 catalog for instance, the Koala bear sculpture designed by Lloyd Atkins in 1971 was priced at $375. An auction price in the 1990s was $150. In the current Steuben Heritage Catalog it is priced at $1,400.

Hand coolers are a good place for beginners to start. Charming figurals of animals and sealife by famed Steuben designers are selling from $195 to $250.

Historically hand coolers were made in the 18th and 19th centuries of porcelain, marble and glass eggs to cool the hands of ladies at dances. They were introduced in 1981 by Steuben.



Steuben teddy bear hand cooler designed by David Dowler, 1995. Reintroduction of Heritage Series. Photo credit: Steuben Glass.

Historically, when Frederick Carder founded Steuben glassworks in 1903, it was within the same era that Louis Comfort Tiffany was developing his new concepts in American Art Glass. Carder, like Tiffany, created new techniques and colors along with thousands of forms during the 30 years he headed Steuben.

In 1933 color was out. Replacing it were Scandinavian techniques that were combined with a newly developed optical glass composition. At Steuben architects and designers were hired to work alongside the glassworkers. Before this, the engravers had worked at home.

Sculptor, Sidney Waugh, was among the first to use the new figural engraving techniques for Steuben, with his crystal "Gazelle Bowl."

Not until the post World War 11 1950s were full-lead crystal decorative pieces produced at Steuben. By the mid 1950s free sculptural forms of crystal animal and bird figures made. Designed by internationally famous artists in limited numbers they became the first examples of commercial American Art glass.

CLUES: Beginning collectors should familiarize themselves with the designs and designers through the many books on mid-century Steuben. An updated version of "Steuben Glass: An American Tradition in Crystal, by Mary Jean Madigan will be published by Henry Abrams in April 2003. Look for old Steuben Catalogs at second hand book stores and estate sales.

How about a collection of strawberries or field mice? These tiny pieces issued in 1976.

A set of six 2-inch strawberries cost just $150. The 6-inch mice were $115 each.

Should you discover any look on the bottom for the name Steuben. Since this was the year of the Bicentennial patriotic themes were popular. Maybe you'll come across a triangular-shaped stars and stripes paperweight. The price then was $160.

If you are a romantic type, there are a wide variety of heart objects from $95 for an ornament to $600 for two hearts entwined.

So, be it old or new, when you think Steuben, think small in size and price.

Little Wiconisco Creek Under Study In Dauphin County

MILLERSBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Many people have never heard of the Little Wiconisco Creek. They don't know where it is located and that it is designated as an "impaired" stream.

The Little Wiconisco Creek drains an area of more than 17 square miles from Berrysburg to Millersburg. All of the creek, including the little streams that feed it are struggling to support the aquatic life naturally found within a healthy stream. Although pastoral and picturesque, the watershed is slowly succumbing to man's increasing pressures on the land.

The Dauphin County Conservation District (DCCD) is currently conducting a study of the Little Wiconisco Creek Watershed and is preparing to hold public workshops pertaining to water pollution in the creek.

The workshops entitled "Little Wic & You", will include the natural history of the watershed, the current conditions of the creek and methods to prevent pollution and improve water quality within the watershed.

Two types of meetings are being offered. Each with a slightly different focus. The Non-agricultural workshop highlights concerns and actions specific to the residential community. The Agricultural workshop is designed to address impacts and practices that are unique to the agricultural community.

The workshops are as follows: Agricultural Residents: Berrysburg Community Center, Oct. 20, 7 p.m.-8:30 p.m; or Oct. 23, 10:30 a.m.-1 p.m. Non-Agricultural Residents: Grace United Methodist Church, Medical Road, Millersburg, Oct. 23, 7 p.m.-8:30 p.m.

For more information, contact the Dauphin County Conservation District at (717) 921-8100.

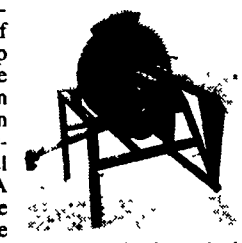
Portable Tractor Saw



Cut cordwood, pulpwood, firewood, ties or any other type of wood ...anywhere. Hook it up to your 3 point hitch, attach the PTO and move the Woodsman Saw to any location As soon as you place a log on the sturdy 40" table, you'll get the feel of balanced-torque action. A light hand pressure moves the log into the blade, release the pressure and the spring loaded table rocks back on dual roller bearings, ready for the next cut Built on a rugged steel frame, the Model 250 is engineered for years of heavy duty use.

Defining Disc Performance

Genetically modified hybrids and higher yields create residue management challenges. Hoober offers Krause disc harrows in three agronomic classes to size and incorporate residue, improve soil tilth and provide quicker soil warm-up in the spring – all key factors in maximizing yield potential.

All-Purpose
(Models – 7400 Series, 4995)
- 140-210 Lbs. per Blade ~ 22" or 24" Blades
- Primary tillage or seed bed finishing
- Heavy crop residue management

CLASS III
Primary Tillage
(Models – 2400 Series)
- 210-250 Lbs. per Blade ~ 24" or 26" Blades
- Primary tillage / extreme conditions

Give Thanks to the Lord

O give thanks unto the Lord, for He is good, for His mercy endureth forever.

K.J.V. Psalm 107:1

At an early age, children are taught to say "thank you" when they are given something. Parents try to instill in their children the feeling of being grateful and the importance of acknowledging when someone does something good for them. Children learn by our example as well as our words, and they are quick to imitate their parents' habits. Thanking those who have been good or helpful to us is common courtesy. We should also be expressing our appreciation to God for his many blessings. Recognizing God as our sustaining source of life, and being appreciative of His great love will draw us closer to Him and help us to be better people. A sincere and honest "thank you" is a blessing to the giver as well as to the receiver, and it indicates that a person's good deed or helpful action was not in vain.

We at BHM Farm Equipment would like to take this time to thank the Lord for His bountiful blessings and thank everyone for their patronage and friendship.

Happy Thanksgiving

BHM FARM & LAWN EQUIP.

Everlast Roofing, Inc. Metal Roofing & Siding

The Ultimate G-100 Process
"The Best"

1 Valspar 10S Finish Coat
2 Epoxy Primer
3 Zinc Phosphate Pretreatment
4 G-100 Zinc Coating
5 Full Hard Steel (80,000 min yield)
6 Heat formed, less paint cracks

NOTE! It is more important what is under the paint than what you see on top!

1. One of the best paints, superior acid rain, cracking resistance and color retention
2. Primer coat promotes outstanding top coat adhesion
3. Zinc phosphate pretreatment This is a very important process - if your current supplier cannot supply you with this or does not know, you should reconsider
4. G-100 Galvanized Most metal roofing has approx 40% less galvanized under the paint G-100 is more galvanized than most unpainted panels
5. Full Hard Anything less than full hard will bend easier, lower snow loads, etc
6. Heat formed Metal is painted before ribs are formed Most paint cracks at bends, heat forming greatly reduces cracks (check metal siding that is installed for 5-10 years)
7. Stronger design, superior strength, more metal per L F
8. Add Everything Together And Price Should Be $53 37 Per Square $1 69 Per L F

OUR SPECIAL PRICE ONLY
$48.32 PER SQUARE
$1.53 PER LINEAL FT.

Everlast II is better:
- it is galvanized heavier, like old times
- it is heat formed, less paint cracks
- is cut while hot, prevents early edge rust
- won't scratch as easy, paint is harder
- won't bend or buckle as easily, stronger design
- laps are tighter, and virtually invisible
- nails/screws seal better, ribs fit tighter to head
- zinc phosphate, not chromate under paint
- still priced about the same or less
- picked up or deliver from Lebanon plant

Everlast II is excellent for houses and barns.
Standing seam is ideal for houses

You Must Hear what Brad says:

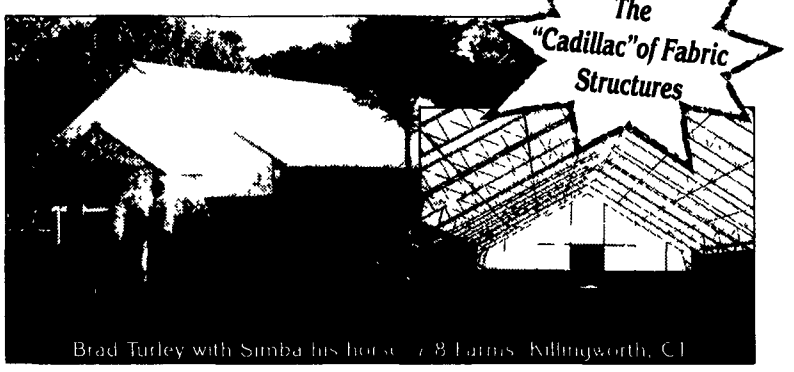
"I couldn't be more pleased with my riding arena!"



Brad Turley with Simba his horse at 8 Farms, Killingworth, CT

" knew what I wanted and I found it! After extensive research I knew I needed a fabric structure from We Cover. The facts that made my decision were:

"The Engineering – when I saw their heavy built trusses and engineered drawings, I knew their building would hold up to the Atlantic Coastal winds and snow

"The Lighting – I can ride my horse in the natural light with no shadows to spook my horse

"The Design – The Building has straight side walls giving me plenty of clearance for riding. The fabric is in 12' panels and each panel is tightened by a ratchet system. Add to the this the convenient overhang and a sensible ventilation system. These excellent features combined with the many options of this building package make it a real winner!

"My local building engineer is so impressed, he says he will never again recommend a traditional building for an indoor riding arena. "I recommend you call We Cover today!"

The strength, integrity, and appearance of a solid building along with the lighting and construction advantages of a fabric structure.

What's heat forming?

In metal roofing and siding it's the best way to go! Here is why. Everlast heats the paint very hot on their Everlast II product before they cut and form it into roofing and siding. Tests have proven that heating paint before cutting and bending prevents virtually all microscopic cracks in the paint. Ask our competition if they heat form. It's important. Normally manufacturers form and cut at room temperature. Unfortunately that cracks the paint causing early rust at formed bends and edges.

Manure Hauler Certification Classroom Session & Manure Applicators Association Formation

Tuesday, December 16, 2003
Dauphin County Agriculture & Resources Center
1451 Peters Mountain Rd.
Dauphin, PA 17081

Today's manure applicators are faced with many issues and public pressures Regulations geared towards protecting water and air quality that are being implemented by dairy and livestock producers are having direct effects on commercial manure applicators Additional concerns of the industry involve road transport and safety issues

The Manure Hauler Certification Course has been designed to educate applicators on the laws and issues that are faced by their industry and to help them to address the issues within then businesses and community To receive the voluntary certification an individual must attend an educational field day and attend a classroom session Either step can be completed before the other A $10 00 charge for the classroom session will be collected at the door

Many who are in or close to the hauling industry feel that the formation of a manure applicator association can offer many benefits A few of the benefits an association could provide to the manure application industry are a voice in regulatory development, group insurances and provision of employee benefit packages Following this year's classroom session a dinner and meeting will be held to discuss the advantages and industry interest in association formation A $15 00 fee for dinner will be collected just prior to the meal

Dairy Producers, Industry Leaders Sought

MADISON, Wis. — Outstanding leaders from across the international dairy industry are being sought for World Dairy Expo's annual recognition awards.

"We're encouraging people to nominate someone who has demonstrated exceptional leadership," said general manager, Tom McKittrick. "Recognizing these individuals during World Dairy Expo showcases the leadership present in the dairy industry and adds to the excitement of Expo."

Nominations will be accepted through Feb. 1, 2004 in the four following categories:

- Industry Person of the Year
- Dairy Woman of the Year
- Dairyman of the Year
- Internatinoal Person of the Year

The Industry Person of the Year award is presented to an individual in recognition of excellence in research, development, education, marketing or other fields that are part of the dairy industry.

The Dairyman and Dairy Woman of the Year awards are presented to individuals who are active dairy producers and whose primary source of income is derived from their dairy operation. His/her farming operation needs to demonstrate and excel in efficient production and breeding of quality animals. Progressive management practices, along with involvement in community, government activities, breed organizations and other aspects of the dairy industry, will also be considered.

The International Person of the Year will be recognized for significantly contributing to international relations, business development, trade or cooperation in the dairy industry.

Individuals will be honored at Dinner With the Stars during World Dairy Expo, Sept. 28 to Oct. 3, 2004, in Madison, Wis. Official applications are available through the World Dairy Expo office by calling (608) 224-6455 or via e-mail at wde@wdexpo.com.

Fluid Milk Identity Standards Study On Website

Dairy farmers are becoming increasingly concerned that technological advances in the fractionation of milk could result in a reduction in the volume of nonfat milk solids sold in fluid milk products. Current FDA standards for nonfat solids in fluid milk products are set at a minimum of 8.25 percent, well below the average content in farm milk. Fluid milk products are Class I products under the Federal Milk Marketing Order system and as such return a higher price to dairy farmers. In response to dairy farmers' concerns, Congress included a provision in the Farm Security and Rural Investment Act of 2002 directing the Secretary of Agriculture to study the potential impacts of raising the nonfat solids standards to the national average level as it occurs in farm milk and adopting the average true protein level as an additional standard for fluid milk products.

The study is available at: www.ams.usda.gov/dairy/index.htm. It is located under the heading of "Studies Required by the 2002 Farm Bill."

"In my previous barn, I scraped two times a day, and I was tired of it, not to mention the danger to the cows if a cable snapped. I thought I would not be able to justify the additional cost until my builder suggested a design change which brought the cost down relatively close to the original design.

The biggest benefit to me is the labor savings. Two people can handle all the chores for our herd. I save money not only on labor but also on repairs.

The cows' hooves are healthier, and they show heat better because they are not afraid of slipping. During the five years with slats, I have not lost a single heifer from slipping. The cows stay much cleaner, even with my misting system for cooling them. The water has a place to escape."

- Raymond Good, Good's Dairy Farm

"We would use slats again if doing it all over!"

"Our original plan was to install scrapers. But after 10 minutes in a slatted barn in Somerset County, we changed our minds. Some people stay away from slats because of the initial cost, but that extra cost is made up for in the first couple years.

The one thing I like the most about slats is that there is no expense. I don't have any scrapers or drive units to maintain. I don't have to run scrapers every day or haul manure like we did in our previous tie stall barn. The cows' foot health has been a lot better, and the cows stay much cleaner. Our milk production is up and the somatic cell count has gone down. I give at least some of the credit to the slats because with less moisture on the floor, there is less bacteria."

MDIA To Feature Speaker On 'Keeping It Simple'

WESTMINSTER, Md. — One of New York State's leading dairy producers will unveil his "Secret of Profitable Dairy Farming in the East" at the Maryland Dairy Industry Association's (MDIA) 2003 Annual Meeting, scheduled Tuesday, Dec. 16.

George Mueller, Clifton, N.Y., has a theory that should be of interest to all Maryland dairy producers, according to MDIA president Robert Ramsburg.

Mueller's time-tested theory of "keep it simple," has proven successful on his 2,200-acre dairy farm near Rochester, N.Y., where two generations milk 1,200 cows, raise 1,000 replacement heifers, and lay plans for a nearby additional 1,000-cow satellite operation. Mueller says his plan will help eastern dairy producers compete with large California dairies, while keeping their production costs at manageable low levels.

Mueller and other dairy industry experts will speak at the MDIA 2003 Annual Meeting at the Carroll County Agriculture Center, adjacent to the County Farm Museum, Westminster.

Resource panels include officials from Rutgers University, Maryland Department of Agriculture, Taylorsville Veterinary Clinic, and McLanahan Corporation, as well as successful dairy producers from Misty Meadow, Harmony, and Mercer Vu Farms. Specialists will outline new dairy programs, including control of Johne's disease, improvement of milk quality, and latest government initiatives on nutrient management. There will be an update on special provisions developed for dairy producers in the FY2004 crop insurance program. Attendees can choose from among three morning sessions, each moderated by a dairy specialist from Maryland Cooperative Extension.

An afternoon general session will review what was learned from Maryland's recently completed pilot program on dairy quality management. The session will also feature the state's newly appointed coordinator on Johne's Disease control, along with dairy producers and extension specialists participating in the programs.

A minimal registration fee will include a buffet country-style lunch, breaks, and complete proceedings. Members are encouraged to bring family or farmstead workers to the industry program. Nonmembers are welcome. For the first time, exhibitors will be sponsoring dairy producer customers to join

Producers Discuss Bird-Damaged Silage Bags

GREEN BAY, Wis. — A recent discussion on the Kansas State Silage-L Internet site highlighted several possible solutions to the problems caused by bird damage to silage bags.

The first comments on bird damaged silage bags came from Thunder Bay, Ontario. The producer noted, "We've recently had a lot of bird damage on some bags filled with alfalfa silage. The bags had no holes for several months, and in the last two days it has been quite bad. Today, I placed a radio out on the pad playing a talk station. Will this help?"

The first producer to respond sent a picture of how they handle the problem of bird damage. They note, "on top of the bags we use paper stripes or even a net to repel the birds." In the picture there were bales of hay on top of the bags with a post driven through it. The netting is then placed on top of the bales, and hooked on to the posts. The bales appear to be approximately 10 feet apart.

Other producers wrote in comments, each with their own solution, noting that no solution seemed to be fool proof. Several suggested placing a wire running lengthwise along the bag. Some noted that this seemed to help somewhat with birds, but not with other varmint such as rodents, deer, cats, or dogs. Most noted that the radio would soon lose its effectiveness as the birds became accustomed to the noise.

Joe Shefchik, spokesperson for the Crop Storage Institute, notes "This is a widespread problem with no clear solution at this time. While almost everyone has a suggestion on how to limit the damage, it is still a very real risk of storing forage in silage bags. The effects of this problem in terms of quality and dry matter losses are very difficult to measure. There is only one bag that I am aware of that was tested for dry matter losses after it suffered bird damage. This bag was at the University of Wisconsin where they found losses exceeding 30 percent."

A COW THAT MAKES MORE MONEY IS A DAIRYMAN'S BEST FRIEND.

Lactating cows need their "treats", and the fat supplement that keeps them healthy and increases their milk- and milkfat-producing potential. CAROLAC™ PLUS, now with Beta-carotene and Natural Vitamin E, raises the energy density of your herd's rations and helps avoid the "negative energy balance" that normally occurs during the first 90 to 120 days of lactation.

Test have shown that feeding large amounts of vegetable oils or oilseeds can have a negative effect on fiber and protein digestibilities, milk and milkfat yields. However, the highly saturated fats in CAROLAC PLUS allow the "timed release" of fat into the rumen, which means CAROLAC PLUS can slip through the sensitive rumen to the lower digestive tract. There it can be hydrolyzed and digested, giving your cows the building blocks of energy they need for optimum milk production and health maintenance. The addition of Beta-carotene and Natural Vitamin E to CAROLAC PLUS also provides your cows an additional benefit of better reproductive health and performance.

Packaged in convenient 50 lb. bags, CAROLAC PLUS can be top-dressed to benefit your most productive cows. Make the future richer for you and your herd with CAROLAC PLUS – a great, low cost "dessert" Your cows thank you with higher productivity and profits

Dairy One

Dairy One Hosts Interns

ITHACA, N.Y. — Dairy One recently conducted internships for two SUNY Cobleskill students.

An internship is a requirement for bachelor of technology agribusiness students as well as other majors offered at SUNY Cobleskill. The internship program requires students to have a variety of experiences within a business affiliated to their majors.

In the summer of 2002, the internship was given to Nicole Koerner, an agribusiness/agri-enterprise major. Nicole grew up on a small dairy farm located in Pike, N.Y.

"The diverse opportunity of Dairy One is what really interested me" said Nicole. She had the opportunity to work a few weeks in many of the departments: the milk lab, Quality Assurance, forage lab and forage data, accounting office and she worked in the field with many Dairy One Farm Service Technicians. In the fall 2002, Nicole also assisted Dairy One in giving phone support to Pennsylvania technicians learning to use the Dairy Comp 305 software.

Emily Peck, also an agribusiness/agri-enterprise student, took this internship opportunity during the summer of 2003.

Emily grew up on a small dairy farm located in Richville, N.Y. and has the desire to expand her skills and experience in the dairy industry.

Time was spent with Farm Service Technicians, the Dairy Management Resources team, and the milk lab.

Making Manure More Environmentally-Friendly

Fly Ash, Alum Shown To Stabilize Phosphorus

PHILADELPHIA — In keeping with the increasing overall awareness of environmental issues, dairy, hog, and poultry farmers across the country face growing governmental regulation and public demand to manage a huge quantity of animal manure in an environmentally friendly manner. Using animal manure as a fertilizer is problematic because the large amount of soluble phosphorus in manure is prone to runoff losses in waterways, contributing to water-quality problems in many streams, rivers, and estuaries.

Scientists at the University of Pennsylvania's School of Veterinary Medicine have found an economical and effective way to stabilize manure phosphorus by lowering its solubility using fly ash — the fine, often airborne particles derived from the burning of coal. When fly ash materials were mixed with dairy, hog, or broiler manures, water-soluble phosphorus decreased by up to 80 percent. Another additive, alum (aluminum sulfate), also reduced water-soluble phosphorus dramatically.

Fly ash materials are easily obtainable at minimum cost from coal-combustion power plants. The results of the 2001-2002 study, which was funded by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's Chesapeake Bay Program, appeared in the July-August issue of the Journal of Environmental Quality by the American Society of Agronomy, Crop Science Society of America, and Soil Science Society of America.

Making Manure

In manure that has been treated with fly ash or alum, highly water-soluble phosphorus shifts to other forms that are less soluble and therefore more stable. The mechanisms responsible for these shifts are precipitation, absorption, and entrapment. Scientists believe the shifts are desirable and beneficial because the phosphorus available for crops would be similar over the long term, while its environmental losses would be substantially reduced.

"Treating manure with alum or fly ash prior to field application can be a management tactic particularly useful on farms where manure has to be spread during late fall to early spring. These are sensitive times when crops are not growing, and phosphorus and other nutrients cannot be utilized while runoff potential is the highest. With treated manure, phosphorus would have a better chance to stay in the fields until the crops can use it rather than being dissolved in runoff waters and getting into streams and rivers," said lead scientist Dr. Zhengxia Dou, at the Center for Animal Health and Productivity at New Bolton Center. Dou was joined in the research by scientists J.D. Toth and James Ferguson, both from Penn.; G.Y. Zhang of the Soil Science Institute, Chinese Academy of Sciences, Nanjing, China; and W.L. Stout, of the U.S.D.A.'s Agricultural Research Service in University Park.

The amounts of aluminum or heavy metals in soils that have been fertilized with alum- or fly ash-treated manure are well below the natural levels and within government-regulated limits.

"Of course, soils and crops in fields receiving treated manures should be monitored through proper testing to safeguard the health of animals and humans," Dou said.

An integrated, whole-farm management program is most effective in helping producers improve nutrient efficiency, enhance productivity, and minimize adverse environmental consequences.

Dr. Arlen Mills demonstrates a little calf sense for workshop participants.

Dairy Alliance Checks Producers' 'Calf Sense'

CHARLENE M. SHUPP
ESPENSHADE
Lancaster Farming Staff

BAINBRIDGE, (Lancaster Co.) Challenging more than 20 dairy producers on their "calf sense," members of the Dairy Alliance and Penn State extension recently put workshop participants through a "boot camp" on newborn calf care.

The day-long training workshop took place at Meadow-Vista Farm, owned by Gerald and Don Risser, Bainbridge.

The workshop focused on the first three days of life in newborn calves and how to increase calf-raising success, according to Rich Stup from Penn State Dairy Alliance.

"This is a challenge regardless of farm size," Stup said. "Look at the value of calves. (They are) the next generation of the farm."

In its second year, Calf Sense workshops provide systematic management training and provide tools to take home to the farm.

The day started off with general sessions touching upon several areas of dairy calf management: colostrum management, newborn calf health, and calf care consistency.

"Whatever is ingested first is absorbed first and fast," said Dr. Jud Heinrichs of Penn State as he reviewed the importance of colostrum management.

Heinrichs stressed the importance of feeding colostrum to a newborn calf early for the quick uptake of microbes by their immune system. Hendricks recommended three quarts at birth and follow up of three quarts four hours later.

Testing for colostrum quality, Heinrichs said, is important to make sure the calves get what they need.

"You can't look at this stuff and tell what it is," said Heinrichs.

Other points included how to freeze colostrum and using frozen colostrum as a management tool to eliminate Johne's disease on a farm.

Dairy Alliance Checks Producers' 'Calf Sense'

Dr. Robert Van Saun addressed newborn calf heath issues emphasizing the importance of taking in the whole picture when developing a calf health program.

"You can't vaccinate your way out of a disease or a biosecurity issue," said Van Saun as he reviewed the importance of calf care before, during, and after birth.

Van Saun said that 75 percent of calf losses in the first year of life happen during the first month.

Richard Stup spoke on the importance of calf care consistency and how to communicate it with calf managers on the farm.

"Actions in the first hours of life directly affect the calf's chance of survival," Stup said. "Dead calves don't make you money."

Stup reviewed ways to develop standard operation procedures (SOPs) for calf management, employee communication to maintain good calf care, and employer review of procedures.

"All this science is important," Stup said. "But we need to find a way to communicate and get it on the farm."

After the morning workshops, participants took their knowledge and put it to the test through hands-on training in tracking calf health, feeding, colostrum testing, SOP development, and record keeping.

Dairy Alliance Offers Course For Managers

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Good leaders aren't born, they're made, and teaching dairy farm supervisors the skills they need to lead their employees more effectively is the goal of the Management Essentials for Dairy Success (MEDS) program kicking off Dec. 16 in State College.

Presented by Dairy Alliance, MEDS is an intensive, hands-on educational program that teaches human resource management skills. The program is designed for farm owners, mid-level supervisors, or anyone who anticipates assuming a supervisory role in the future.

"The goal of the program is to help managers grow and develop in their supervisory role so they, in turn, can help others," explained Richard Stup, senior extension associate with Penn State Dairy Alliance. The course is customized for modern dairy farm managers so they can apply the concepts and techniques they learn on their own operations.

Topics covered in the program include: workplace communication, systems management, employee motivation, performance monitoring and feedback, performance problem-solving, coaching, delegation, transition to supervision, and understanding management and leadership.

MEDS stresses small-group interaction, which helps in the learning process and provides participants an added benefit: an opportunity to network with peers confronting many of the same challenges they are.

The four-day MEDS course will be offered in two-day modules Dec. 16-17 and Feb. 17-18 at the Holiday Inn Express, State College. Instructors are Stup; Dr. John Park, associate director and instructor of Management Development Programs and Services at Penn State; and Dr. Lisa Holden, associate professor, Department of Dairy and Animal Sciences, Penn State.

Pre-registration is required. For more information or to pre-register, contact the Dairy Alliance at (888) 373-7232. The program fee is $450 and includes program materials and meals.

Dairylea Co-Op Recognizes Quality Producers

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Dairylea Cooperative, Inc., honored member producers with top quality milk through the 2002-2003 Milk Quality Management Award Program at its annual meeting Oct. 14-15 in Liverpool, N.Y.

Members are judged each month for 12-consecutive months on multiple criteria, including somatic cell count of 300,000 or less, no added water, no growth inhibitors, and no off flavor, odor, or questionable appearance.

The following members are recognized as producing the highest quality milk from June 2002-June 2003. They are among more than 117 members who qualified all 12 months of the program. The final, top quality rankings were based on the lowest index derived from dividing the average monthly standard plate count by 1,000 and the average monthly somatic cell count by 50,000 and then adding the two numbers together.

Dairylea member-farms honored this year are:

- Balsam View Dairy — Brian, Heidi, Harold, and Donna Newton, McDonough, N.Y.;
- Jerry and Kathy Beary, Cranberry;
- Louis and Lois DesJardins, Munnsville, N.Y.;
- Paul Kolinger, Honesdale;
- Remillard Farms — Reuben, Monica, Tom, and Tim Remillard, Peru, N.Y.;
- Scibona Farms, Geneva, Ohio;
- Hidden Acres — Tom and Ginny Simmer, Barnet, Vt.;
- Jesse Stover, Coburn; and
- Toolite Farms LLC — Richard and Jason Tooley, Granville, N.Y.

These members attributed their high quality results to placing importance on cleanliness, consistent milking procedures and cow comfort.

Air Emissions — More Than Odor

Robert E. Graves
Penn State Extension
Agricultural, Biological, and Engineering

Air quality, especially as it relates to odors and nearby surroundings is of great interest in many communities. Many equate air pollution and air quality with our nose. We see it as an aesthetic or nuisance problem, a "quality of life" issue. "If it doesn't smell, we are OK."

A quick review of a recent publication from the National Research Council of the National Academies "Air Emissions From Animal Feeding Operations: Current Knowledge, Future Needs" (www.nap.edu) helps one realize that air emission from animal agriculture are much more than just what our neighbor can smell. The committee has classified the issue into 13 major findings with accompanying recommendations.

Of interest to me is a table in the executive summary "Committee's Scientific Evaluation of the Potential Importance of AFO Emissions at Different Spatial Scales." The table lists nine emissions from animal feedings operations (AFO) and rates them by potential importance in two categories: Global, National, and Regional; and Local-Property Line or Nearest Dwelling. These nine emissions include chemical forms of nitrogen, hydrogen sulfide, methane, particulates, and odors. Odor is rated the major "local" concern but is considered insignificant on a "global" basis. It is a quality of human life issue for those living nearby the source. However, ammonia is considered of minor "local" concern but is rated as major on a "global" basis. This explains why scientists at Penn State and many other institutions are working to quantify the amount of ammonia released to the atmosphere from animal housing units.

Manure and how it is managed is the primary source of ammonia from most animal units. In the future it may not be acceptable to just turn up the fans and blow away ammonia that results from, wet, manure soaked bedding, sloppy freestall alleys, or manure storages. It may be necessary to manage moisture levels, cleaning schedules, pH, or other conditions to minimize loss of ammonia to the atmosphere in the barn, in storage, and during land application.

Let's hope that answers to some of the questions that have been raised by this report concerning these nine different emissions areas will be helpful.

Breeding For Excellence Keeps Beshores In Dairy Business

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

NEW CUMBERLAND (York Co.) — Jed and Sue Beshore have worked with cows their whole life. Their breeding philosophy still keeps adapting to the demands of dairy farming.

Jed Beshore is the third generation of his family on the farm in northern York County, just across the Susquehanna River south of Harrisburg.

Sue grew up in Berks County, the daughter of longtime dairy enthusiast and show judge, Ray Seidel.

Since Jed was a boy, the landscape of the surrounding area and the business of dairy farming have changed in big ways.

Being surrounded by housing developments and facing a long stretch of low milk prices could make dairying seem like a losing battle to the Beshores, who milk about 50 registered Holsteins in a tiestall barn and grow forages on 120 acres.

It is the ongoing challenge of producing a better cow that keeps them interested. And it appears the Beshores have passed that fascination on to their children Angie, 20, and K.C., 13, who have both enjoyed considerable success in the show ring.

"As far as dairy farming goes, this breeding aspect is by far why we still do it," Jed Beshore said.

In the last decade, the Beshores have found themselves growing more interested in cows that stand the test of time. In earlier years, they were more inclined to breed for the "extremes" that might produce a top sire.

"As a farmer, I'm no longer interested in those extremes," Beshore said. "I want a complete animal."

Beshore has come to put longevity and type at the top of his priority list when it comes to choosing sires. He looks for bulls that are at least two points on the plus side for type, especially those that make good udders, feet and legs.

He also wants bulls that improve somatic cell counts.

To help make mating decisions, Beshore prefers talking to people who see many cows in their travels. Type considerations come first.

Breeding to produce A.I. sires with top production figures, as he was doing in the 1980s, can mean sacrificing soundness and type, according to Beshore.

"Back in that time, we were trying to breed for the A.I. market and went too far on the (production) numbers game, and type fell off," he said.

The Beshore's rolling herd average stands at 21,000 pounds of milk, down about 2,500 pounds from where it was two years ago, mainly because of the recent difficulties in harvesting good-quality forages, Jed said.

The Beshores do not feed total mixed rations or use bST to boost production.

About half of the Beshore's herd traces back to Beshore Rotate Bupp-Lynn Jody, a 2E-91 brood cow who lived from the mid-1980s to the mid 1990s.

November Bull Proofs

The USDA and dairy breed associations recently released their November bull proofs.

The Holstein TPI ranking emphasizes the following traits as follows:

- Protein, 36%
- Fat, 18%
- Type, 15%
- Productive Life, 11%
- Udder Composite, 10%
- Feet & Legs Composite, 5%
- Somatic Cell Score -5%

The Jersey Performance Index (JPI), introduced in 2002, combines the production traits of PTA (predicted transmitting ability) protein and PTA fat with selected fitness factors to rank bulls by their overall commercial profitability.

The JPI is calculated from five factors: PTA protein (weighted 50 percent of the total), PTA fat (weighted 20 percent), the Functional Trait Index (weighted 15 percent), PTA somatic cell score (-5 percent), PTA Productive Life (5 percent), and the Functional Udder Index (5 percent).

Emphasis on fitness traits is 30 percent in the JPI, with particular emphasis on udder traits. Production traits account for the remaining 70 percent.

While the list of top JPI bulls highlights production traits, the JPI ranking in the last column includes all JPI traits, including type considerations.

Information contained in the bull proofs may vary from breed to breed. Check with your breed association to get a full explanation of the bull proofs.

narvon Farm, Morgantown, Jody now has cow families "all over the world," Beshore said.

Jody has mothered about 100 offspring with the help of embryo transfer technology and has produced four bulls that signed on to A.I.

A New York Yankees fan, Beshore tends to name his bulls after members of the fabled baseball club. "Jeter" is a high-ranking Jody son named for shortstop Derek Jeter. Beshore Manfred Torre, now being proven in California, gets his name from the Yankees manager.

A recent highlight for the Beshores is a 2-year-old Holstein that K.C. purchased as a heifer from his uncle, Doug Seidel.

K.C. led Silver Shade Lee Cadillac to the supreme championship at the York Fair this summer. She went on to place first in the junior division at the Eastern National Holstein Show in Harrisburg this fall.

Cadillac completes eight generation of Very Good and Excellent cows, according to Jed.

Beshore Adan Juniper was the winningest cow in Angie's show career. In 1996, Juniper was nominated Junior All-American as a 2-year-old, and went on to classify 2E-91 and make 35,000 pounds of milk in a lactation.

Angie is a student at Millersville University with a dual major in elementary and special education. Apparently, though, she hasn't lost her love for Holsteins.

"Her goal is to teach school, own cows, and have Dad milk them," Jed said.

Sue works fulltime for Wells Fargo, helping to support the family and keep the family's strong Holstein tradition alive.

In the barn, a solid breeding philosophy goes a long way toward making dairying a profitable venture for the Beshores.

"We're never going to get rich farming, but as long as we want to keep farming we'll be able to," Jed said.

Workshop Helps Managers Understand Best Accounting Practices

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

MIDDLETOWN (Dauphin Co.) — Accurate financial analysis for dairying or any other business begins with sound accounting.

And there are methods overlooked by dairy farm managers that can not only streamline accounting, but also improve the bottom line.

Those were some of the messages that more than two dozen farm owners and accounting managers took home earlier this month during a special Penn State Dairy Alliance Seminar, "Accounting Methods For Progressive Dairies," conducted Nov. 4-5 at the Penn State Harrisburg Campus.

Dairy farmers have to keep up with the times — and they are changing.

"Many farmers are operating with the same business models my father and grandfather used 50 years ago," said Brad Hilty, Penn State Dairy Alliance. "We have a business information overload. We are data rich and info poor."

Making correct use of the data — and knowing how to keep the accounting principles "in balance" — can mean many-fold improvements in profitability, according to accountants who spoke.

Workshop

Giving the data good structure will allow good accountants to provide the information "on a one-page information statement" that's useful for tax preparers and banks, noted Hilty.

Problem is, "some folks don't know computers well enough," he said, and need to take the time to learn the systems and the software.

That could take time. "Nothing is more boring than reading a computer manual," said Hilty. "If you have trouble getting to sleep, it'll put you to sleep just like that."

The key formula that most computer account systems use is the one in which "assets equals liability plus equity," said Hilty.

Software that takes accrual accounting into effect provides a more accurate picture of the financial performance of the business. What that type of accounting gives dairy mangers is income reported when produced, and expenses when incurred.

A typical business accounting system, noted Michael P. Peachey, CPA, and director at Miller and Miller CPA, Lancaster, is like the human body. He noted there has to be a "leg bone and an arm bone for the body to function," and those specific tasks have to be understood and well defined.

A good set of data entry accounting systems is necessary, said Peachey. There is evidence that the best financial performers "also have the best understanding of accounting and a good grasp of what accounting can do for them."

In the system, operators should take those separate practices, such as utilities and insurance, and "separate them out as much as possible."

Brad Hilty of Dairy Alliance said that "we can't use the checkbook to pay for everything — we have to get away from that thinking" in order to stay profitable, he noted.

Workshop participants had a chance to understand basic accounting principles and relationships and how to put that understanding to the best use.

Peachey noted that assets represent all the items that are owned by the business (for example, cash in the checking account, dairy cattle, and real estate). Capitol assets are purchased dairy cows, machinery and equipment, and real estate improvements. They are valued in the accounting system based on the amount of money we paid for the asset and how much of the investment we have recaptured using depreciation.

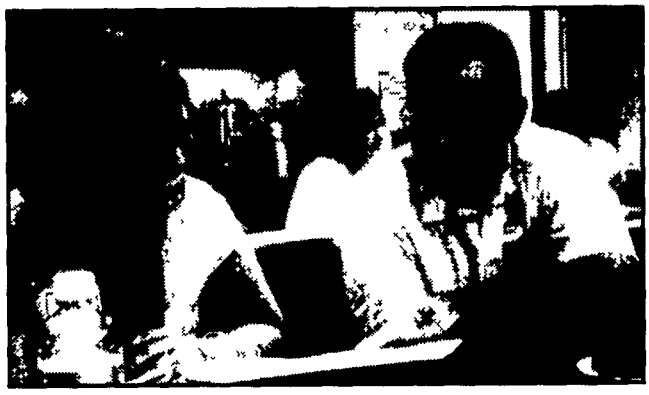
Equity is the value of the business assets we own outright. Equity changes every day with each transaction. Equity equals retained earnings minus owner draws plus owner contributions plus income minus expenses.

Liabilities are everything a business owes, including bank loans, credit card balances, and accounts payable.

Costs and receipts should be correctly captured. Peachey believes firmly in the double-entry system for debits and credits. The balance sheet should be able to provide a good "snapshot" of the operation, he said. Those sheets are the navigational markers on the road of business performance.

The formula, "assets equal liabilities plus equity" provides "the foundation of double-entry accounting," Peachey said. And today's computerized systems provide accurate and automatic ways of doing this.

Peachey provided examples of ways normal business practices affect the formula: When you issue a check to pay for feed, expense formulas are affected.



Melissa Stoltzfus and her father David Martin, Manheim, fill out a practice worksheet during the Dairy Alliance accounting conference in Harrisburg.

- When you borrow money for an operating line of credit, both assets and liability formulas are affected.
- When you write a check for groceries, you are co-mingling personal and business expenses. "No other business does that," said Peachey. "It's something culturally with farming operations."

To be successful, it's important to "wear separate hats." Farmers have to understand they are an "employee" of the farm operation and use a "draw" from the business entity as compensation.

• If we claim depreciation against the mixer wagon, it affects assets and liabilities. We decrease assets and increase expenses, which lessens equity.

When using depreciation, make use of economic depreciation rather than tax depreciation, which has more cost benefits in the long run.

• We purchase fertilizer on an account with a dealer for immediate use on a field — increasing liability and decreasing equity. Hilty noted this can distort the profit and loss statements at a certain point in time.

These types of decisions can affect any one or two of the accounting types in the equation.

Attendees were challenged to answer a variety of questions about possibilities. One question — is there a way to increase assets and increase expenses? No one had an answer, because "you cannot increase an asset and increase an expense," said Hilty. "It's a trick question. Enron did it and they're behind bars."

Hilty explained the work to create accounting and benchmark standardization to provide standards in charting accounting. For instance, in their benchmark recommendations, bST should be a separate account, but in the livestock expense category. Vet costs should be separate from livestock. These should be separate, such as hoof trimming.

It is important to separate categories, such as livestock sales, purchased culls, owner draws, and other items.

This separation allows the dairy accounts manager to track certain activities on the farm, and "provides a really good structure to your data and allows you to compare operation to operation a lot more smoothly," said Hilty.

In the end, managers have to understand that not all "inflow is income," he said. "You have to separate the cash flow from the profitability."

Peachey noted this type of system can allow the accounts manager to "step back and look at the big picture," he noted, of the farm's financial progress.

Hilty said that the definition of accounting is a function, a "measurement and communication function," he said. "But you also have to be able to communicate this to people."

Semen Handling: Don't Fumble The Ball After A Long Drive!

Michael O'Connor
Penn State
Dairy and Animal Science Extension

Much has been written in recent months about new or modified estrous synchronization programs for lactating cows. The primary purpose of such programs is to improve the percentage of eligible cows that are inseminated and conceived during the estrous cycles that occur shortly after the voluntary waiting period (VWP). Many dairy producers have adapted such programs to fit their management schedule to reproductive management becomes more systematic.

Whether cows are inseminated based upon signs of heat or inseminated at a fixed time, it is crucial that proper semen handling procedures and insemination technique are used. Achieving good reproductive performance is always a challenge.

Don't fumble the ball after investing time and money implementing a sound reproductive management game plan. Here are some reminders.

- Avoid excessive movement or abuse of the semen tank. It isn't a "Rubbermaid product." Keep the tank elevated above the concrete floor or other wet, poorly ventilated surfaces. Corrosion of the metal shell will shorten the life of the tank and possibly cause failure to maintain temperature.
- Ensure A.I. equipment is kept clean, dry, and not exposed to excessive temperatures.
- Develop a semen inventory system which will help avoid excessive searching for semen and exposure to dangerously high temperatures within the neck of the tank.
- Some farm nitrogen tanks contain semen from as many as three breeding organizations. Thaw the semen according to the recommendation of the organization that supplied the semen. When in doubt, use a warm water thaw (95°F).
- Once the semen is thawed, take precaution to prevent thermal shock. Although prevention of cold shock is emphasized most frequently, heat shock can occur if the insemination device is exposed to elevated temperatures during the warmer months. Thermal shock is permanent injury to sperm caused by sudden changes in semen temperature after thawing. This can occur during preparation of the inseminating device or transport to the cow.

- Check the accuracy of your thermometer on a routine basis.
- Water is deleterious to sperm. Dry each straw of semen thoroughly.

Use sanitary procedures when preparing to insert the insemination device.

- Consider using protective rods or sheaths in herds where vulvovaginal infection is a chronic problem.
- Other than breeding cows in "true" heat, accurate rod tip placement is probably the most important skill involved in the artificial insemination process. The target for insemination, the uterine body, is small.

Twenty years ago, researchers at Penn State used radiography to evaluate accuracy of A.I. technique and determine the dimensions of the uterine body. This method permits the interior of the tract to be viewed without dissection. Forty experienced individuals, 20 professional technicians and 20 herdsmen-inseminators, were evaluated using this technique. Precise measurements of nearly 800 reproductive tracts revealed that the average length of the uterine body was only 5/8 of an inch, the size of a dime. There is not much room for error in placement of the rod tip. Analysis of all inseminations indicated only 39 percent of the rod tip placements were within the uterine body. Placements in the cervix, right uterine horn and left uterine horn were 25, 23, and 13 percnt, respectively. Considerable variation was found among inseminators. These individuals were likely representative of professional inseminators and herdsman-inseminators throughout the country. Obviously, consistent placement of the rod tip within the uterine body is difficult.

Subsequent to this study, research at Washington State University showed that retrograde movement of sperm into the vagina was 2-fold greater following cervical insemination compared to uterine deposition. If one assumes that 25 percent of inseminations may result in cervical deposition of semen, than there is significant loss of sperm. This isn't an incomplete pass — it is an interception. Make sure you extend the rod tip beyond the internal cervical opening and be careful the rod tip is not inadvertently pulled back into the cervix during deposition of the semen.

- All inseminators should periodically attend a retraining course to review their technique and learn new developments.

This is only a brief review of important concepts and potential problem areas related to A.I. procedures. More detailed information can be obtained from your A.I. representative. Further information about insemination technique and semen handling can be obtained at the following Websites:

Steam-Flaking May Reduce Nitrogen Secretion

Steve K. Tallam and Dr. Zhiguo Wu
Penn State
Department of Dairy and Animal Science

Starch degradability in the rumen varies with grain source and processing methods. Extensive processing of grain increases the rate of starch digestion in the rumen because of increased exposure of the kernel to microorganisms.

Research has shown that steam flaking of corn increased starch digestibility in the rumen from 35 to 52 percent compared to dry rolling. Total tract digestibility of starch was also increased from 73 to 97 percent. Consequently, net energy for lactation of corn was increased by 20 percent. When steam-flaked corn was fed, milk production and protein yield were increased by 5 to 8 percent, respectively, compared to dry rolled or steam-rolled corn. These increases were not associated with any significant changes in milk fat yield.

Steam flaking of grains has been shown to increase microbial protein production in the rumen. This could translate into lower protein requirements from the diet and less nitrogen excretion. Recent studies at Virginia Tech showed that nitrogen excretion in the feces was reduced when a steam-flaked corn diet was fed compared to a dry ground corn diet.

Decreased nitrogen excretion or increased efficiency of nitrogen utilization may have a positive effect on reproductive performance. Increased degradation of starch in the rumen reduces ammonia absorption due to greater utilization for microbial protein synthesis. Feeding steam-flaked corn increased recycling of blood urea nitrogen to the gut by 80 percent compared to dry rolling or steam rolling in low protein diets.

This transfer of urea to the gut conserves nitrogen and increases microbial protein production. This also may reduce the concentration of urea nitrogen in blood, and improve reproductive performance.

Research has shown that embryonic survival may be compromised in cows that have a high blood urea nitrogen concentration. A recent study at Penn State showed that feeding steam-flaked corn resulted in low milk urea nitrogen concentrations. In that study, steamed flaked corn was included in the diet at up to 28 percent, and the diet contained 18 percent crude protein. Mean milk urea nitrogen concentration was lower than the average reported for many dairy farms.

CWT Accepts Fraction Of Buyout Bids

ARLINGTON, Va. — The national Cooperatives Working Together (CWT) program has received a total of 2,552 bids for its herd buyout and reduced production marketing programs in the effort to reduce domestic milk supply and raise farm milk prices.

As of the second week in November, 376 of the 2,522 bids were accepted, CWT reported on its Website, http://www.cwt.coop/index.html.

CWT reported that, by Nov. 12, it had accepted 299 bids for its herd buyout program. Of those herds, 21 came from the Northeast region, including Pennsylvania, Maryland, and New York.

The average accepted bid was $4 per hundredweight of milk production. CWT reported 32,734 cows had been sent to market through the program as of Nov. 12. The retired herds represent 608 million pounds of annual milk production.

In the reduced production marketing program, CWT has accepted 77 bids representing 88 million pounds of milk. The average accepted bid was $4.07 per hundredweight.

CWT's funding comes from farmers in participating co-ops who are investing 5 cents per hundredweight to pay for its programs.

CWT's goal is to increase farm milk prices by 36 cents per hundredweight by decreasing the national milk supply by 1.2 billion pounds by mid-2004.

Beside the herd buyout and reduced production marketing programs, CWT also aims to increase exports of cheese and butterfat.

CWT is operated within the structure of the National Milk Producers Federation, the membership organization for America's largest dairy cooperatives.

Calf, Heifer Housing Workshop Set For Ag Professionals

YORK (York Co.) — Ag professionals such as veterinarians, nutritionists, and other consultants wanting to learn more about dairy calf and heifer housing, health and management are invited to attend a December ag engineering workshop hosted by Penn State Cooperative Extension. Veterinarians that attend the workshop will receive 11½ continuing credit hours.

Calves and heifers hold the future genetic production potential of today's dairy operations. Housing, care and management greatly affect the health, growth and production ability of these important animals. The objective of the workshop is to further educate ag professionals that work directly with dairy producers on the housing factors that create a healthy environment for calves and heifers. Health and management practices will also be covered.

The workshop will be offered at two times and locations:

- Sayre, at the Best Western, Dec. 3-4.
- Chambersburg, at the Hampton Inn, Dec. 17-18.

The workshop will be a combination of classroom lecture, round table discussion, and on-farm demonstration and troubleshooting.

This workshop is designed to be interactive; therefore registration is limited to 25 people at each site.

For more information, contact Dan McFarland at (717) 840-7408 or dfm6@psu.edu. Workshop and registration information can also be found on the web at http://AgEngWorkshop.cas.psu.edu.
